

Memorial Told By Explorers Of Apollo

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A simple plaque and a silver figure of a spaceman were left in the dust of the moon as a memorial to the 14 men who have lost their lives in space exploration programs, the Apollo 15 astronauts said today.

Mission commander David R. Scott said the memorial was left in the moon mountain valley where he and James B. Irwin landed.

"In a small subtle crater," said Scott, "there is a simple plaque with 14 names—the names of all the astronauts and cosmonauts who have died in the pursuit of exploration of space. Near it is a small figure of a fallen astronaut."

Scott said the plaque and the silver figure were left in a crater about 20 feet north of the Rover, and moon car they left on the moon.

The moon mission commander made the announcement during the first news conference that he, Irwin and the third crewmate, Alfred M. Worden, have held since returning from their 12-day mission to the moon.

Scott told newsmen and a national television audience that there is a need to establish permanent science stations on the moon. He also called for restoration of two canceled Apollo moon flights.

"I believe we should explore the moon to a far greater extent than we are now," he said. "I think we should have a whole base of scientists up there. And I think we should have a Rover that would carry a half dozen men."

The canceled Apollo 18 and Apollo 19 moon landings, he said, should be restored "right now."

There are now two more moon landings planned, Apollo 16 next March and Apollo 17 in December 1972. Apollo 18 and Apollo 19 were canceled because of space budget cuts.

The astronauts said that during their time on the surface and in orbit of the moon they saw scores of places they felt could be of scientific importance.

"Any place you go there's just a wealth of material, new and unusual scientific data," said Scott.

"I think the moon is indeed a fascinating place. I hesitate to use the word barren and desolate. To the three of us the moon was dynamic, beautiful and it has character."

Scott and Irwin had high praise for the Rover, the first car on the moon.

"That little system exceeded our expectations," said Irwin, as he narrated a film he took while the little car moved across the lunar surface. "The ride is very bouncy. It's a combination of a small rowboat on a rough sea and a bucking bronco."

The spacemen ended their lunar expedition last Saturday, splashing down in the Pacific Ocean after a voyage of more than 12 million miles.

Scott and Irwin spent 19 hours exploring the surface of the moon and collecting 175 to 185 pounds of lunar samples, including what they believe to be a bit of the moon's original crust.

Area Changes

Remap Solution On Senate Lines

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri senatorial redistricting commission completed its primary task of re-aligning the lines on the state's 34 senatorial districts Wednesday.

All 10 members of the commission signed the final report that will be filed soon with Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick. But first the legal description of the lines must be meticulously spelled out, making sure that no county, no city and even no precinct in the state is left out.

The commission figures that under terms of the constitutional amendment making its creation and work possible it has until Sept. 1 to file the report.

Three new districts would have incumbents vying against each other if they choose to run.

In St. Louis County's 8th District there will be Sens. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, and John D. Schneider, D-Florissant.

In southeastern Missouri's new 33rd District there will be Sens. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, and Nelson B. Tinnin, D-Hornersville.

In the 19th District of northeastern Missouri there will be Sens. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, and Norman L. Merrell, D-Monticello.

In outstate Missouri the Republicans apparently have five sure districts and the state's dominant Democrats have 10. Two others appear to be swing districts.

But as a commission member said when asked what the political breakdown might be in a normal election in Missouri: "What's a normal election in Missouri?"

State Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Clayton, minority leader in the Missouri Senate, rode close herd on the proceedings, puffing on his pipe and urging Republican members of the commission to demand a balance of power—40 per cent of the Senate seats since the Republicans usually cast 40 per cent of the vote in Missouri.

He said they got that, too, in the Senate redistricting, with a substantial edge in 14 of the 34 districts.

It takes 18 votes to pass any legislation in the Missouri Senate and 14 votes can control the outcome in many situations, especially if there's any sort of split among the Democrats.

The new districts are between 4 and 5 per cent of the population norm of 137,544. Exactly half, or 17, are from the St. Louis metropolitan area and Jackson County (Kansas City).

They are contiguous though in some surprising shapes in some cases.

Take the 20th District of northern Missouri. It stretches from the northwestern Missouri counties of Atchison and Holt to the northeastern county of Scotland with a southern leg that includes Daviess and Caldwell counties.

Or the 31st of southeastern Missouri. It is a dog of dignified gait with a head comprised of Reynolds County, front legs made up of Carter and Ripley counties, a rump labeled Cape Girardeau and rear legs labeled Scott and Mississippi counties.

There's a friskier dog in the 23rd District that includes this capital city. The head is Moniteau County, the neck Cole County, the chest Maries County and the front legs Phelps County. Osage and Gasconade counties provide the torso and the counties of Montgomery and Warren provide the frisky after portion.

All the districts were *renumbered according to area. Thus the first 4½ districts are in St. Louis city, part of five is shared by St. Louis city and county and all of districts 6 through 11 are in St. Louis County.

District 12 includes a part of St. Louis County and all of St. Charles County.

Jackson County contains districts 13, 14, 15, 16 and 18.

Here is the makeup of the other districts:

17—Clinton and Clay counties.

19—Clark, Knox, Lewis, Shelby, Marion, Monroe, Ralls, Audrain, Pike and Lincoln.

20—Atchison, Holt, Nodaway, Andrew, Worth, Harrison, Daviess, Caldwell, Mercer, Grundy, Putnam, Sullivan, Schuyler, Scotland and Adair.

21—Pettis, Cooper, Morgan, Benton, Miller and Pulaski.

Skelton District Notes Big Split

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — The 28th senatorial district served by Sen. Ike Skelton of Lexington will be split up between the 21st and 24th senatorial districts under the redistricting plan approved Wednesday by a 10-member bipartisan commission.

At present, Skelton serves the 28th senatorial district which consists of Linn, Charatan, Saline, Lafayette, Pettis and Cooper Counties.

Under the new plan, all the above counties would become part of the 24th district, while Pettis and Cooper Counties would join Morgan, Benton, Miller and Pulaski Counties, the commission indicated, in the 21st district.

The plan will now be submitted to James Kirkpatrick, secretary of state.

Protestant Celebration Accompanies New Riots

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Religious rioting raged through Londonderry early today as Protestants celebrated a victory over Roman Catholics three centuries ago, but Belfast had its quietest night since Catholic Republicans turned the city into a battleground on Monday.

Five more persons were killed in Belfast Wednesday before British soldiers restored an uneasy peace, shattered only by a 90-minute gun battle between troops with snipers at dawn today. The killings Wednesday raised the toll to 23 in Northern Ireland this week.

Hundreds of others have been injured, an estimated 7,000 persons have fled from their homes, and hundreds of buildings have been destroyed by fire in the violence triggered by the internment of more than 300 persons suspected of belonging to the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

The commander of the 12,500 British troops in the province, Lt. Gen. Sir Harry Tuzo, said the situation appeared to be "going in our favor now and in the proper direction."

He predicted that the violence would continue until the weekend and possibly longer, "but things will begin to improve soon, of that I am certain." The IRA, spearhead of the Republican fight, was reported running short of arms and ammunition.

In Londonderry, the province's second city, Catholic fury exploded during the night as Protestants lit bonfires to commemorate the Aug. 12 anniversary of the breaking of the Catholic siege of Londonderry in 1689.

More than 400 Catholic women and children marched out of the Bogside enclave to protest the internment of suspected terrorists, chanting: "If you shoot a British soldier clap your hands."

When they dispersed, Catholic men took to the streets with bombs, bottles and a scattering of automatic rifles. The army estimated 500 gasoline bombs were thrown, and at least 12 shots cracked from sniper posts in the Bogside in less than five minutes.

Troops drove a wedge between rock-throwing Bogside and dancing, singing Protestants in the central fountain area. They lit the district with flares and fired repeated volleys of tear gas into the Catholic mobs.

The soldiers then beat back a mob of Protestants with nightsticks as it tried to reach the Catholics.

The undeclared armistice in Belfast was broken just before dawn when British troops moved into the Falls Road area, a Republican enclave, to remove barricades thrown across the streets by rioters. Snipers opened up, and the soldiers dived for cover and returned the fire.

One woman was wounded in the crossfire. After 90 minutes of continuous shooting, the area fell quiet again and army bulldozers removed the barricades.

Officials in the Irish Republic to the south estimate that 5,000 Catholic refugees have crossed the frontier since the violence began, severely taxing relief facilities.

Women, children and babies are arriving "by the hundreds every hour," said an Irish army officer. One refugee camp, designed to hold 100 people, held 1,600 Wednesday night.

More than 2,000 Protestants have left their homes for the safety of schools and churches in Northern Ireland.

Gen. Tuzo said the security forces had rounded up 70 per cent of the men believed most dangerous. He predicted the rest would be netted within a few weeks.

Army searches in Belfast Wednesday produced 600 gasoline bombs, flares, bullets and fuses. An IRA leader who arrived in Dublin Wednesday night said his men were running short of arms and ammunition and would not have enough "if we have to continue to fight the British army."

Sources in Dublin estimate the IRA had 1,000 men under arms in the North for its campaign to reunite the six Protestant-dominated counties with the Catholic republic.

Ireland's Foreign Minister Patrick Hillery conferred with British officials in London Wednesday, and informed sources said he told the British his government is prepared to take part in round-table talks with London and Belfast provided the North's 500,000 Catholics — one third of the population — are represented.

Chimney's No Place For Duck

According to nursery rhymes and old sayings, cows can jump over the moon and bats reside in belfries, but how about fowls flying down your flue?

This is the unlikely situation which confronted L. J. Brown, 1212 Liberty Park, when he overheard a strange flapping sound behind the trap door to the flue of his basement chimney Thursday morning.

Upon inspection, Brown discovered one of Liberty Park's 18 (or so) ducks occupying the bottom of his flue. The soot-covered bird, which had undoubtedly greeted the dawn a fleecy white, had apparently been searching for a place to nest, Brown surmised, after discovering "about a half a peck" of feathers the duck had plucked from her own body for the purpose of building a nest.

Brown said he cautiously carried the reluctant duck from the flue to Liberty Park Lagoon where the fowl "seemed to be glad to get a bath and a drink of water."

"The park ducks are pretty tame," Brown said, "and they wander into the yard all the time. I saw this particular duck Monday in the garage and again Wednesday when she was walking around on the top of my workbench. I guess she flew on top of the roof this morning (Thursday) and found the flue."

A retired life insurance agent, Brown and his wife have lived in the area adjacent Liberty Park since 1947.

"This is the first time anything like this has happened as far as I know," Brown reflected. "I was a little hesitant about opening that trap door but things worked out for the best ... we did manage to get our chimney cleaned."

For Thompson Co.

Assessment Steady

The Pettis County Board of Appeals voted Wednesday to allow the assessed valuation of Thompson Hills Investment Co. to remain at its present level of $218,000, instead of raising the property valuation by $20,000, as recommended by the county's Board of Equalization.

The action was taken, according to one board member, in an attempt to keep the various shopping centers in Sedalia on as even a tax basis as possible.

Originally, a board member stated, Thompson Hills Investment Co.'s valuation had been raised by the Equalization Board because that board felt the increase would help maintain a tax balance between the shopping center, located on Highway 50, and Bing's Shopping Center on Highway 65.

The Board of Appeals reversed the decision after considering the fact that Bing's Shopping Center had actually decreased in valuation. A move to raise Thompson Hills Investment Co.'s valuation would have created too wide a gap between the valuations, it was felt.

Bing's Shopping Center was decreased in valuation by the board because of recent highway expansion projects which took land from both the western and southern sides of the shopping center property. The valuation of the shopping center was lowered by $15,000 to $249,030.

Both the Board of Equalization and the Board of Appeals are comprised by the same members: the three members of the County Court, Jim Green, presiding judge, E. L. "Red" Birdsong, eastern district judge, and Zeb Thomas, western district judge; Jerry Jones, Sedalia's mayor; Jerry Trotter, county assessor; Brooks Wade, city assessor; and Keith Eckstrom, county surveyor. Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson, county clerk, served as a non-voting secretary for the boards.

New Lease on Life For Area Rest Home

Buena Vista Nursing Home received a new lease on life Thursday morning when the Pettis County Court guaranteed the home $2,000 a month in aid for the rest of the year and promised to "try to figure it in the 1972 budget, if possible."

The decision was arrived at after a 40-minute conference marked by intensive bargaining and quoting of statistics by the two groups involved — the County Court and the executive committee of Buena Vista's board of control.

The Rev. Medford E. Speaker, committee chairman, hailed the County Court's decision as ushering in a "new day" for Buena Vista. Mrs. W. C. Askew, a committee member, described it as a "new hope" for the indigent in Pettis County.

"The county judges have done a real generous thing. They've guaranteed the existence of Buena Vista," Mr. Speaker said.

Mr. Speaker told The Democrat-Capital that the County Court's decision "will, in the long run, save County tax payers money." He explained that if Buena Vista had to be closed due to lack of funds, it would cost much more to care for its 41 residents in other nursing homes.

Earlier in the meeting, Mrs. Askew said that the nursing home's bank balance is down to approximately $3,000 — "about enough money to stay open for three months if no emergency arises."

Before the judges agreed to provide the $2,000 buffer, Mr. Speaker said that Buena home's board of control, thanks Presiding Judge Jim Green for the favorable decision. Mrs. W. C. Askew, a board member, explains to E. L. Birdsong, eastern district judge, the nursing home's financial situation. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Vista "will have to be closed in October" if support was not forthcoming.

He pointed out that the financial crisis is mainly due to the fact that 12 of the nursing home residents depend solely on $125 a month welfare checks when the present monthly bill at Buena Vista is approximately $180. "These and other residents are indigent, and, if we refuse to take care of the indigent, we'll lose our charter," Mr. Speaker warned.

He said there are several other persons in the nursing home who make less than the amount they are expected to pay to the home.

Former State Sen. John Ryan, a member of the nursing home's board, said that at least 25 such homes in Missouri are facing similar financial crises. If these county-supported nursing homes are closed down, Missourians will have to pay more to take care of the indigent in private nursing homes, he pointed out. Therefore, he said, he is confident the state legislature will try to solve the problem.

Mr. Speaker added that the County Court's guarantee of $2,000 a month has given the board a "talking point" in its next attempt to obtain a financial assistance from the state Welfare Department.

The County Court was represented at the meeting by the three county judges, Jim Green, E. L. Birdsong and Zeb Thomas. Representing Buena Vista were Mr. Speaker, Mrs. Askew, Ryan, Jim Wiley, Hughesville, and Herman Wallace, director of the Pettis County Welfare Department.

Community Center Plan Roadblocked

The plan to turn St. Patrick's School, Fourth and Washington, into a Community Center has run into a snag, according to Morris Byrum, president of the Sedalia Poy's Club Advisory Board, which has applied for a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to purchase the property.

The application for funds was returned to the local level because of changes in HUD policy, Byrum said.

He said the application, once some procedural deficiencies are corrected, would have to be re-submitted for HUD re-evaluation. Byrum said he did not know how long the corrections would take, but hoped the application could be returned to HUD before Sept. 1.

Byrum told The Democrat-Capital that timing was very important in getting the grant approved. "We would like to get our application in before the funding deadline on Sept. 30," he said.

Preliminary approval by HUD in September would clear the way for a grant reservation to set the money aside exclusively for the Sedalia project. He said final approval of the grant would come after specific remodeling and construction plans had been cleared by HUD.

Byrum would not comment on the nature of deficiencies and criticism mentioned by HUD in a letter he received last week. He did say, however, they dealt primarily with revisions in application procedures.

The entire project is expected to cost $200,000, he said. Of that figure, an estimated $60,000 will be spent to construct a new, multipurpose gymnasium to the north of the existing school building.

The federal grant, if approved, would be used to purchase the school building, the old St. Patrick's convent and the grounds on which they are located.

Byrum said the federal funds would have to be matched by $70,000 obtained locally.

A meeting to discuss HUD's letter will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at St. Patrick's School by the Boy's Club Advisory Board. Byrum said the meeting would not be open to the public or newsmen. He said a news release concerning the major points of the meeting would be available Friday.

Investigation Is Closed Over Wallace Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has junked its investigation into alleged corruption in Gov. George C. Wallace's state administration in Alabama.

Sources said a confidential report inside the Justice Department decided the investigation failed to find enough evidence to warrant prosecution.

A federal grand jury is scheduled to reconvene Sept. 7 in Montgomery, Ala., to close out the probe.

A source inside the Justice Department said tax indictments might be returned at this grand jury session or a future one, even though the major thrust of the investigation has ended.

The tax probe has touched on a $5,000 swimming pool built for Wallace's former top aide, Seymore Trammell, and $25,000 in campaign donations listed as expenses by a textbook firm that supplies public schools in Alabama, government sources said.

A broader probe that began 1½ years ago failed to uncover sufficient evidence of asphalt and highway kickbacks, state dock payoffs and bank favors for state officials, the source said.

In Montgomery, Gov. Wallace declined any comment on the investigation.

Wallace, who carried five states in his third-party White House race in 1968, has never been directly involved in the grand jury investigation, which has subpoenaed a number of officials from his state administration.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Will R. Wilson, head of the Criminal Division, met here Tuesday with government tax lawyers, campaign investigator and a federal prosecutor from Montgomery in connection with the long investigation.

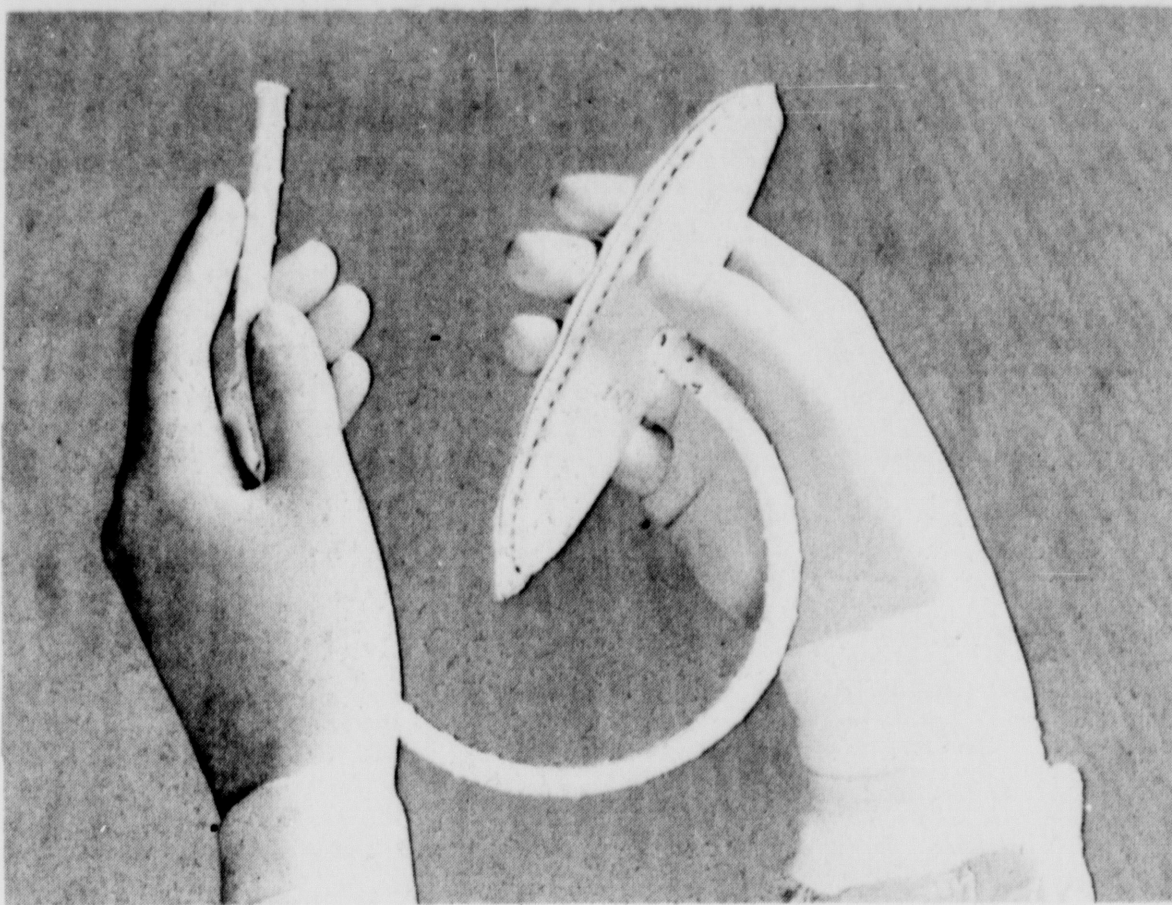

Government sources said the Justice Department probe had touched on a $110,000 loan by a Birmingham bank for Wallace's 1968 presidential race, false advertising invoices issued to disguise political donations to a 1966 state campaign, and possible payoffs for state contracts.

However, sources say the confidential report found in each case was either insufficient evidence or lack of any federal law violation.

The pending tax case centers on Trammell, a former state finance director who was Wallace's top campaign aide until a split during the 1968 presidential race.

A Justice Department official confirmed the grand jury was told false advertising invoices were issued for $25,000 in contributions by EBSCO Industries, a Birmingham firm supplying school textbooks, to the 1966 governor's race by Wallace's late wife, Lurleen. A Mobile advertising executive, Charles O. Ditmars, testified he made out various invoices at Trammell's request. It is illegal to deduct campaign donations as business expenses.

A government source also said the grand jury heard testimony that Trammell got a $5,000 swimming pool built at his farm outside Montgomery. Warner Mathis, head of a firm that supplied doors and window frames for state construction jobs, testified he had the pool installed at Trammell's request. Sources quoted Mathis as testifying that a college building contractor paid the bill for the pool.

Reveals China Espionage War

WASHINGTON (AP) — For 20 years the United States has sponsored a secret war of espionage, sabotage and guerrilla activities on mainland China waged by Nationalist Chinese forces, two professional China watchers have told Congress.

Dr. Allen S. Whiting of the University of Michigan's Center for Chinese Studies and Jerome A. Cohen, professor of East Asian Legal Studies at Harvard Law School said such activities must end permanently or President Nixon will fail in his "journey for peace" to Peking.

They were joined by Dr. John K. Fairbank, director of Harvard's East Asian Research Center, who contended China has remained essentially nonexpansive over 2,000 years. He also downgraded China's ability to threaten its neighbors.

"Their standard of living is still low and they have many prior demands on their resources," Fairbank said.

"The American public, if it has 30 million handguns and other firearms for hunting and sport, may have as much firepower as the whole Chinese army today ... The Chinese are never going to threaten this country."

The three men testified before the Joint Congressional Economic Committee headed by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., which is studying proposed cuts in the $80-billion U.S. defense budget.

"The United States has frequently violated international law in its relations with China," Cohen said.

"It will be important to determine," he said, "whether the recent cancellation of illegal overflights and ground penetrations of China represents merely a temporary gesture to facilitate President Nixon's trip or a new American policy of dealing with China ..."

American public and official opinion would be outraged if Chinese aircraft were repeatedly violating airspace on spy missions, Cohen said.

"Yet somehow it seems right to Americans—that China, North Vietnam, North Korea and other Communist states should abide by the rules of the world community while tolerating our failure to do so ..."

Whiting gave details of a number of covert missions he said the United States conducted including aid to a 1959 revolt in Tibet. He said others had taken place inside China with aid of U.S.-supported forces from Taiwan and elsewhere.

"There is a credible case that overt and covert U.S.-Nationalist activities have aroused the Chinese Communist security concerns ..."

Establishment of diplomatic relations with Peking must take place before relations between the two nations are normalized, Cohen said.

"This may require us not only to recognize it as the only legitimate government of China," he said, "but also to acknowledge ... that Taiwan is Chinese territory and that the United States, at some point if not immediately, will cease its intervention in the Chinese civil war."

Waiting Game Is Played Over Prayer in School

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tense waiting game is being played in the House over the issue of prayers in the public schools. The outcome is likely to be decided shortly after Congress reconvenes next month.

Supporters of a proposed constitutional amendment permitting school prayers are trying to sign up enough members to force action on it, and Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, is waiting to see if they can.

Celler, who opposes the amendment on constitutional grounds, has bottled it up in his committee and doesn't plan to take any action unless he has to.

When Congress adjourned for its summer recess last week there were 191 signatures on a petition to take the amendment away from the Judiciary Committee and send it to the House floor. It will take 219 to do it.

Celler, the 83-year-old dean of the House, has been through the battle before. In 1964 after a discharge petition gathered 167 signatures Celler yielded and held hearings on a prayer amendment.

For nearly six weeks a parade of witnesses including church officials, educators, legal scholars and representatives of dozens of private organizations testified for and against the amendment. When the hearings ended the committee found itself unable to agree and laid the amendment aside.

The hearings disclosed widespread opposition among religious leaders to any amendment that would weaken the constitutional barrier between church and state.

Awaiting similar statements of opposition this time, Celler has printed in the Congressional Record a letter from the American Baptist Convention praising him for waging "a valiant fight against efforts to legislate religion," and one from the Unitarian Universalist Association urging him to stand fast.

The proposed amendment stems from a 1963 Supreme Court ruling that barred required Bible reading and compulsory prayers in public schools. The amendment would specifically allow voluntary prayer.

The move to force action on the amendment is being led by Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Ohio, who has been spurred in his efforts by Mrs. Ben Ruhlman of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

Mrs. Ruhlman, who heads an organization called the National Prayer Group, has been directing an intensive lobbying campaign on Capitol Hill to get members to sign the discharge petition. She had 30 volunteers working the halls of Congress for two weeks in hopes of reaching the goal of 219 signatures before the month-long recess slowed the momentum of the campaign.

Building Up in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Real Estate Board reports that construction starts on single family units in Kansas City, Mo. are up 50 per cent from 1970 — or 669 for the first six months of 1971 as compared with 447 for the comparable period a year ago.

Single family unit starts in the metropolitan area are up 80 per cent for the same period — 2,358 this year compared with 6,312 last year.

In the area of duplexes and apartments, Kansas City, Mo. is down 18 per cent but the metropolitan area is up 73 per cent — reflecting a surge to the suburbs.

Total duplex and apartment units started in Kansas City the first half of 1971 were 887, compared with 1,086 units a year ago.

But in the metropolitan Kansas City area, the number of units jumped to 4,544 this year compared with 2,616 a year ago.

The board reported the median price for homes as of a May, 1971, survey was running $27,000 to $30,000 in the metropolitan Kansas City area. The greatest sales activity was reported in the $24,000 to $32,000 bracket, although there was considerable activity in the $18,000 to $24,000 bracket.

Davis Jackson, Executive Vice President of the J.C. Nichols Co., the area's largest developer, said the "market has been quite strong here in your higher priced homes."

"Prices have been increasing markedly here in the last two or three years," Jackson said, "as much as 10 per cent a year and possibly more than that this year because of increased construction costs."

The city has just undergone two lengthy and costly construction strikes, one in 1969 and the other in 1970.

He said the company's average home sale has been running in the low to mid-thirties, but is now averaging almost $40,000.

"Our company's business is up about 30 to 35 per cent over last year," Jackson said. "Early in the year we thought it was because the (stock) market was forming up and people were becoming more optimistic. Now the market's fallen out of bed but that hasn't had any effect on us."

Lawrence Resident Killed in Collision

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A 17-year-old Lawrence, Kan., youth, Monty Barnard, was killed Wednesday in a head-on collision.

Treated and released at a hospital was David L. Szilgyi, 30, of Albuquerque, N.M. Officers charged him with murder without malice.

Juvenile Officials Expecting Charges

GALLATIN, Mo. (AP) — Juvenile officials say they expect to file charges against a 16-year-old baby-sitter being held in connection with the death of 2-year-old Lonnie Hartley.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Hartley of Casper, Wyo., was visiting at the home of his grandparents in Pattonburg, Mo., when he died of head injuries on July 9. It was thought at first the boy was hurt in a fall from his bed, but authorities became suspicious.

A Daviess County coroner's jury found Wednesday that Lonnie died of a broken neck and skull fracture "from cause or causes unknown."

The boy's body was exhumed and a pathologist reported his medical findings to the jury.

Juvenile Judge Sam Long said in Chillicothe Wednesday night that a 16-year-old youth being held there was a baby-sitter for the Hartley boy.

Marine Found Innocent Of Cowardice Charges

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — "I felt I had always acted the right way, now I'll get my honorable discharge," Marine Sgt. Jon M. Sweeney said after he was found innocent of running away in the presence of the enemy in Vietnam and communicating with his Communist captors after being taken prisoner.

"I feel total relief," the 21-year-old West Babylon, N.Y., Leatherneck told newsmen after military judge Capt. B. Raymond Perkins' decision Wednesday ending Sweeney's week-long court-martial.

"I'm going to try to help others understand the POW situation," said Sweeney who spent 18 months in North Vietnamese prisons. "POWs are being used as a political football."

Sweeney, the first American POW to face such charges, was accused by the government of running away and deserting his unit during Operation Dewey Canyon in Quang Tri Province on Feb. 19, 1969, and with communicating with the enemy during his imprisonment.

The desertion charge was dismissed last Monday.

Perkins' decision Wednesday came after Sweeney had spent virtually all day on the witness stand.

Sweeney maintained throughout the proceedings that his unit had left him behind and that he had not run away.

He testified that he was found by two Viet Cong scouts and was taken north along the Ho Chi Minh trail on a truck loaded with wounded North Vietnamese soldiers.

Sweeney said he tried to escape but was dragged back into the truck, bound hand and foot and was placed on the floor of the vehicle. The wounded troops sat on him, he said.

Imprisoned in North Vietnam, he said, he was interrogated an average six hours a day. He said he was beaten continually while under questioning.

Sweeney, who will be 22 on Friday, said he was forced to sign antiwar statements and make propaganda tape recordings which were broadcast over Radio Hanoi. He said a North Vietnamese army officer held a pistol at his head at each of these sessions.

Testimony by three psychiatrists and Sweeney, a slight man who stands about 5 feet 7 inches, indicated he was placed in a 6-by-3-foot cell by the North Vietnamese and became "grossly depressed," tried to hang himself and had nightmares of other prisoners of war being shot while begging him for help.

At this point, "I lost hope," he said. "I felt they were going to keep me for a very long time."

Sweeney said he was told in July 1970 that he would be allowed to go to Sweden "to work for peace."

Sweeney said the North Vietnamese allowed him to visit his parents in a Stockholm hotel.

He said he and his parents sneaked down a back stairway and hurried to the U.S. Embassy, which placed him on a special flight to the United States.

Yugoslavian Maverick Theater

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

DUBROVNIK, Yugoslavia (AP) — This is where theater critics lose their life-or-death box office punch. A set of bad notices can start a ticket-buying stampede.

"What happens in drama, dance and music is something everyone wants to decide for himself," one veteran participant says of the maverick Yugoslav mood. After all, why not? The arts have been an intensive community concern for 500 years.

The Dubrovnik Festival is the prime showcase where classic national pride and mod enterprise meld in colorful brilliance.

Typically, the 22nd annual international fete began in July with medieval pageantry and fireworks.

The program continues through Aug. 25 with an eclectic range stretching from "Macbeth" — which prompted that perverse audience rush when first done last season — to Off-Off-Broadway's LaMama troupe, the National Theater of the Deaf from Waterford, Conn., pianist Andrew Watts, woodwind quartets and folk dancers.

For a drama buff, there's more to sample than in most of global festivals, for both venerable and experimental reasons. Homage is paid to Marin Drzic (pronounced Der-Shez) with two treasured comedies written before Shakespeare, "The Miser" and "Uncle Maroje," which have become annual fixtures. If they're not your bag, there's Brecht's "Edward II" and Tom Stoppard's "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead" and "Macbeth."

Festival Fare

Neva Rosic plays Lady Macbeth and Tonko Lonza the title role in "Macbeth" at the 1971 Dubrovnik Festival. The 22nd annual international fete, which began in July, offers a solid sampling of drama — ranging from Shakespeare to off-off-Broadway and the National Theater of the Deaf from Waterford, Conn. — as well as such attractions as pianist Andre Watts, woodwind quartets and folk dancers. (AP)

Vlado Habunek, stager of the Shakespeare work, has extensively shaken up the presentation since that ambiguous flophit of last season. It is exotic excitement regardless of any technical flaw, and that's ample reward in any theater.

"I've never had such an experience," smiles the urbane man from Zagreb who has directed at Covent Garden and with the New York City Opera. "The reviews last year were so bad that we couldn't get enough tickets to supply people who came from all over the country to find why we had been torn apart."

At that, he regards the present Bard exhibit as an improvement over the "Hamlet" that previously was the standard offering. "It got worse each year," he reflects.

As one of Yugoslavia's busiest directors, Habunek can report that away from Dubrovnik, theatrical enthusiasm leans today toward experimental and avant garde adventure. The professional companies—every sizable community has one under government subsidy alone, with a dozen opera troupes—also are very strong on political satire.

All drama actors enter work after four years of university-level academy training, and thereafter are civil servants at modest wages. A good player can garner about $200 a month from stagecraft, but rounds out to more comfortable circumstance with film and television roles.

The Dubrovnik Festival has been under the over-all direction since 1964 of Mrs. Fani Muhoherac, a no-nonsense housewife type who aims for a judicious program balance between ethnic and imported events.

Glen Seaborg, the chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, says that a scheduled nuclear test in the Aleutian Islands is so safe he would be willing to expose his family and friends to the atmosphere around the test. Opponents of the planned test have claimed that it might trigger dangerous earthquakes and tidal waves and it might leak great amounts of radioactive material into the atmosphere. (UPI)

Shower of Meteors Enters Earth Path

RENO, Nev. (AP) — If you're seeing bright lights in the sky, they could be part of a temporary meteor shower that will last through Thursday, says an atmospheric physicist.

From Aug. 9-12 each year, the earth collides with the path of the Perseid Meteor Shower, said Richard Norton, director of the Atmosphere-Planetary Research Institute.

The meteors are pebble-sized with the largest as big as a pea, he said.

When they become incandescent and visible, the meteors are about 60 miles away. They enter the atmosphere at about 30 miles per second or 108,000 miles per hour, said Norton.

Student Decline Forecast

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — School enrollments will begin to decline in the closing years of this decade and the trend will create a crisis among the 50 colleges and universities in Kansas, a report by the State Master Planning Commission indicated Wednesday.

The number of high school seniors in Kansas will drop by nearly 3,000 by 1980 and by more than 8,000 by 1987, the report said.

Dr. Kenneth Anderson, executive secretary of the commission, said that institutions of higher education, including the community colleges, will begin to feel the impact late in the 1970s.

Kansas high schools had 33,973 seniors at the end of the 1970-71 school year. The figure is forecast to rise to 35,765 by 1975 but drop to 33,461 by 1980 and to 26,339 by 1987.

Anderson said the question is where students will come from to fill the state's colleges and universities.

This was the second annual report by the commission, which was created by the 1970 Legislature to assess the state's educational needs. Wilbur T. Billington of Mission is chairman.

The commission's prediction for 1971 was only 1.85 per cent in error. It forecast 641 more students than the schools had.

Evidence of the declining birth rate is the fact that in 1967-68 the state had 41,270 children in the first grade but last year the total was 35,914.

Down School Levy

EL DORADO SPRINGS, Mo. (AP) — Voters have turned down, for the third time this year, a $3.50 school levy.

The proposal was voted down Tuesday by a vote of 824 to 443.

New Board Members Elected

Six new members of the Pettis County Red Cross board were elected at a board meeting Wednesday at the Red Cross office, 112 West Fourth.

Those elected to three-year terms were Don Morton, Maurice Hogan, Ray Jiedel, P. J. Hedderich, Mrs. Herbert Seifert, and Miss Elizabeth Tevebaugh, Houstonia.

Out-going members are P. A. Sillers, Mrs. Cline Cain, John St. Clair, Mrs. William Garton, John Ryan and Philip McLaughlin.

Chairman Jim Denny thanked out-going members and welcomed new ones to the board. He then called for the election of officers, and the following slate was adopted:

Denny, chairman; the Rev. Medford Speaker, first vice-chairman; Fred Davis, second vice-chairman; Mrs. Robert Gardner, secretary; and Herb Taylor, treasurer.

Mrs. Jane Menefee, executive secretary, presented an annual report on the Red Cross office, noting that 1,152 cases were handled during the fiscal year ending June 30. She said $646 in loans and grants were made by the office, and repayments of $680 taken in. A total of $160 was written off as uncollectable. Mrs. Menefee said.

The executive secretary said the recently-completed Red Cross water safety program saw a record number of enrollees, 1,181.

Mrs. John Knaus, Route 5, was appointed chairman of the Red Cross ditty bag effort this year, with the local office having a quota of 150.

Diets via Mail Order Courting With Disaster

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — What do you think of the enclosed letter and advertisement that says you can lose seven pounds in 48 hours, more than 30 pounds the first month, and more than 70 pounds in three months? The method claims to neutralize calories and turn them into energy instead of ugly fat. You don't have to starve or exercise or take dangerous medicine — just one capsule three times a day.

Dear Reader — I think anyone who begins a reducing program based on mail order claims is courting disaster. A major rapid weight reduction can be harmful in some people. A gradual weight loss by sensible well-balanced diets is one thing, but otherwise anyone wishing to lose weight had better do it under a doctor's supervision.

I have seen some capsules and pills that were given to supposedly intelligent people that actually contained digitalis (a heart medicine) with a diuretic to cause rapid loss of water, a diet suppressant and thyroid. These pills have caused some deaths. A capsule is not safe just because it is a capsule — it depends on what is in it.

No reputable doctor would use a mail-order method promising miraculous weight reduction. I hope the Food and Drug Administration or the Federal Trade Commission can look into this practice and protect the public from such practices. I feel so strongly about this problem that I am sending your letter and enclosure to the Food and Drug Administration and asking them to look into the company.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My three-year-old nephew just doesn't leave toothpaste alone. My sister catches him eating it and feels it will do him a lot of harm. Would you please give us your opinion as he is a well-fed child and we can't seem to find out why he does this?

Dear Reader — He probably eats it because he likes the taste. Children seem to eat almost anything except sometimes what their mother wants them to eat. I don't think the toothpaste can do him any real harm. If he eats too much of it he will likely get sick to his stomach and vomit.

You may be interested to know that the astronauts used a toothpaste in space flight that they could swallow. They were unable to expectorate well during weightless conditions. The flavor oils like peppermint oil were removed from the toothpaste for the astronauts, otherwise it was the standard item. Perhaps your nephew is just a precocious astronaut.

City Hall Proposal Discussed

Tuesday the Noon Optimist Club heard Mayor Jerry Jones speak on the proposed new City Hall building. A city-wide vote will be taken Sept. 14 to determine if Sedalians favor using the one cent sales tax for building the new City Hall.

The cost of the proposed building is $600,000 but taxes will not be increased, Jones emphasized. The funds to build the proposed building will come from general obligation bonds.

Pat Patton, Christmas tree chairman, announced the trees have been ordered.

Kids Day at the Fair will be Aug. 23 for youngsters sponsored by various Optimist Clubs across Missouri.

J. Edgar Harvey, 1815 South Limit, was a guest of Dale Bredwell. Membership and attendance was stressed by Lt. Gov. Ab Ball. The invocation was given by J. W. Watts.

Norris Explains Problem

Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of schools, explained why the Sedalia school system lost its AAA rating and why he thinks the system will get it back, at the regular noon meeting of the Sedalia Lions Club Wednesday at the Hotel Bothwell.

Norris said the three main reasons the system lost the top rating were the lack of a kindergarten program, overcrowded classrooms and unqualified teachers.

According to Norris, most of the problems will be taken care of with the completion of the new junior high school.

Norris also revealed that the addition of new teachers for the junior high will necessitate a somewhat higher school levy, but noted Sedalia has one of the lowest school tax rates for a town its size in Missouri.

Norris was introduced by Ira Mounts, program chairman.

Guests included Donna Weiss, Walt Diehl, D. L. Powell, John Wear, Charles Homes and Joe Petteway.

Finis J. Galloway, manager of Sears, was introduced as a new member.

John Kenney, president, presided at the meeting.

War Lull Is Broken By North

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese broke the lull in the Vietnam war today with a string of attacks along the demilitarized zone. At least 15 South Vietnamese and 26 North Vietnamese were reported killed.

"This is the heaviest fighting in that region since the end of June," said Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, a spokesman for the Saigon command, "but it is too early to say whether this is a new enemy offensive."

The North Vietnamese made seven rocket and mortar attacks and three ground assaults on South Vietnamese positions along the DMZ. Informed sources said at least 15 South Vietnamese were killed and 21 were wounded in the ground attacks. No casualty figures were given for the rocket and mortar attacks, but the Saigon command said they were "light."

The only U.S. casualties reported were two advisers slightly wounded in an assault on the Cam Lo military district headquarters. Nine South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 11 were wounded there, and one Australian adviser was slightly wounded, field reports said.

The bodies of 10 North Vietnamese were found inside the compound and on the barbed wire around it.

The attack on Cam Lo was the most damaging of the night.

Big Four Diplomats In Session

BERLIN (AP) — Ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France met today for the third consecutive day in stepped-up negotiations on a Berlin access agreement.

The session came exactly one year after conclusion in Moscow of the still-unratified West German-Soviet treaty confirming present European boundaries.

As condition for ratification of the pact, West Germany is demanding guaranteed unimpeded travel to West Berlin, which lies 110 miles inside Communist East Germany, and other improvements for the isolated city.

Western officials said this week's negotiations are a review of all points covered so far in the 17-month Berlin talks in preparation for submitting them to Washington, Moscow, London and Paris.

The East German regime started celebrations of another anniversary—construction of the Berlin Wall exactly 10 years ago Friday.

Communist party chief Erich Honecker pinned decorations Wednesday on the top officials responsible for building the wall, guarding it, screening border traffic and shooting at those who try to escape.

The decorations were for "exemplary operations" on Aug. 13, 1961, the day the wall was raised.

Testimony Resumption Scheduled

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Testimony is scheduled to resume today in the federal court damage suit brought by Joe Patton, 24, of Springfield against two southwest Missouri sheriffs.

The jury of six men and six women heard a Greene County volunteer deputy sheriff testify Wednesday that Patton threatened to shoot Sheriff L. E. Lamb of Christian County.

Patton has testified that Lamb struck him over the head with a nightstick near the site of the Finley River Rock Festival in Greene County last September.

Patton also is suing Mickey Owen, the Greene County sheriff at Springfield.

The volunteer deputy, James Shaw, said he had a brief conversation with Patton while Patton's car was stopped on a rural road waiting for a wreck to be cleared.

Shaw told the court that Patton said:

"Sheriff Lamb is crazy in the head, and I'm going to shoot him by the morning."

The deputy said Patton sped away, swerved around a second deputy and was stopped down the road by other officers.

The second deputy, Gerald Shelton, testified that he tried to flag Patton down but Patton swerved around him.

Patton's attorney said Shaw's testimony did not agree with a sworn statement taken shortly after the incident. He said there was a discrepancy as to whether Shaw heard Patton say that Lamb would be shot or should be shot.

Owen testified he stopped briefly at the scene where Patton was being held but continued on when he learned Lamb was on the way. Lamb was helping Greene County officers patrol the crowd at the festival.

Owen said a deputy told him about a threat on Lamb's life.

"I thought a man ought to have an opportunity of personally meeting a man who threatened to kill him," Owen testified.

A 25-year-old companion of Patton, Bill Gray, told the jury he saw Lamb strike Patton over the head with a nightstick.

Two Persons Killed In Three Car Crash

HARRISONVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Two men were killed and the wife of one was injured critically Wednesday night in a three vehicle pileup on U.S. Highway 71 about six miles south of Harrisonville.

The highway patrol said the drivers of two cars were killed. They were Charles E. Edwards, 53, of Adrian, Mo., and William Robert Chambers, 38, of Harrisonville.

Edwards' wife Opal, 48, was taken to a Kansas City hospital in critical condition.

The patrol said the accident occurred a few minutes after 9 o'clock as Chambers attempted to pass a truck and struck the Edwards car head-on. The two cars then bounced into the side of a tractor-trailer rig.

Police Report

Biridie Green, 221 East Cooper, reported 10 feet of picket fence, valued at $5, was vandalized at her home Tuesday night. She said she heard children in the backyard and discovered the damage when she looked outside.

Lenard Brauer, an employee of Town and Country Shoe Co., Missouri and Benton, told police two windows and a section of door glass were broken at the plant sometime Tuesday night. Rocks found inside the building were the apparent cause of the damage, estimated at $25.

Russell Cardwell, 112 East Chestnut, a receiving clerk at Gibson's Discount Store, 1020 South Thompson, reported to police Wednesday the theft of two rubber mats.

The mats, left on a loading dock at Gibson's, were discovered missing at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. Value of the mats was placed at $75.

Cardwell also reported that three youths walked out of the store Wednesday with a pair of Walkie-talkies valued at $26. Store manager Chuch Young reportedly saw the youths leave the store without paying for the items, but was unable to apprehend them.

James Gaston, 42, West Des Moines, Iowa, told police Wednesday that someone broke into his car while it was parked at Holiday Inn, 32nd and Limit, and took $288 worth of food, camping equipment, tools and boat accessories.

Gaston said he believed the theft occurred the night of August 6.

Circuit Court

Norma Rittmueller, 1520 West 20th, filed a $10,000 personal damage suit against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Thursday in Pettis County Circuit Court.

Her petition claims she was struck by a wire belonging to the defendant while she was walking north on Warren Avenue near 13th Street Sept. 11, 1970.

Fires In The City

Slight damage was caused in a garage fire at the J. A. Bass residence, 407 West Broadway, when children playing with matches on a mattress apparently set it afire at 8:24 a.m. Thursday.

Minor damage was caused to an old building, owned by the Central Coal and Heating Co., Broadway and Ingram, when burning trash set it on fire at 11:32 p.m. Wednesday.

Area Fires

The Pettis County Fire Department answered a call at 11:59 a.m. Tuesday from the residence of Edna Barr, Route 1, Smithton, about one and one-half miles north of 50 highway on Route O, where a grass fire, of undetermined origin, destroyed about 10 acres.

Publish China Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study published today by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee estimates Chinese Communism has cost at least 34 million lives and possibly as many as 63 million in the past 50 years.

The author of the study, Richard L. Walker, director of the Institute of International Studies at the University of South Carolina, said: "A reasonable estimate would be that the figure approaches 50 million Chinese."

The study, titled "The Human Cost of Communism in China," was ordered printed by the subcommittee July 27, after announcement of President Nixon's forthcoming visit to Peking in what Nixon has called a journey for peace.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., subcommittee chairman, said in an introduction to the study its publication "comes at a particularly opportune moment."

He said "there is nothing new historical about accommodations or alliances of convenience between basically hostile powers," adding that in certain situations "such arrangements are not only desirable but well-nigh unavoidable."

"But if we are to have relations with Red China," Eastland said, "let us do so with our eyes open."

Will View Buildings Of State

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee plans to open first-hand inspections of state institutions with a visit Aug. 30 to the troubled state Training School for Boys at Boonville.

Rep. E. J. (Lucky) Cantrell, D-Overland, the chairman, announced Wednesday the full committee will spend all that day listening to school administrators, juvenile judges, juvenile officers or anyone else with information about the school.

The next two days a subcommittee will spend on the training school grounds, inspecting actual operations and talking to guards, teachers and inmates.

Cantrell said one of the goals is to find out whether a $3 million maximum security facility, rejected by the 1971 legislature, is needed to handle "hard core" incorrigibles.

The subcommittee will also visit the school's vocational training center at Poplar Bluff.

Sept. 29 and 30 the full committee will hold a two-day seminar at Columbia, learning about the University of Missouri's operations, programs, budgeting and spending patterns.

The next day committee members will walk the campus, seeing the programs in operation and talking with teachers, students and others.

The Kansas City campus will be visited Oct. 4, Rolla Oct. 5 and St. Louis Oct. 6.

All during the fall, Cantrell said, the committee or parts of it will visit all state colleges, hospitals, mental institutions and some of the state parks.

He said formal appropriation hearings on 1972-73 allotments will be started in December as soon as the governor completes his budget appeal hearings.

Pay Hike Members Announced

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Three members of a citizens committee to study pay raises for legislators will be Bill Colvin, editor of the Manhattan Mercury; Dr. Melvin Voth, assistant treasurer of the Hesston Corp.; Hesston, and Robert I. Cory of Wichita, a certified public accountant. Speaker Calvin Strowig, R-Abilene, announced Wednesday.

The president pro tem of the Senate, Glee S. Smith, R-Larned, has named three members. Gov. Robert Docking is to name the other three.

A spokesman for the governor said his appointments would not be announced for a while.

Smith's choices were John Anderson of De Soto, a former governor; Ray Frisbie of Manhattan, president of the Kansas Farm Bureau, and James H. Scross of Lewis.

The 1971 Legislature passed a pay raise bill that was vetoed by Docking. The Legislature then voted to set up a citizens' committee to study legislative pay nationwide and make recommendations.

He described Walker as "widely recognized as one of this country's foremost China scholars" and said he was requested by the subcommittee last fall, on the initiative of the late Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., to prepare the study.

Eastland said the great merit of the study was that "while it does not deny the Communists credit for certain important economic and social accomplishments, it paints the picture whole by assessing and bringing to life the terrible human cost at which these accomplishments were achieved."

Walker's study begins with the founding of the Chinese Communist Party in 1921 and traces its rise to rule mainland China under Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou Enlai.

Walker said the Communists have made remarkable progress in some areas, but said this has been accompanied by mass executions, purges, slave labor and terror.

"The cost of progress achieved under Communist rule is too high for the conscience of the world to absolve its perpetrators," he said. "In terms of human life and human suffering and in terms of destruction of moral and cultural values this cost cannot be condoned by any rationalization."

Hospital Admissions Publication Planned

In keeping with The Democrat-Capital's obligation to inform and serve its readers, both newspapers will publish the names of area residents admitted to Bothwell Hospital if they are phoned in to the news department.

The names of persons admitted should be phoned in for publication in The Democrat no later than 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. For The Capital, the deadline will be 11 p.m. On Saturdays calls will be accepted for Sunday's paper until 10:30 p.m.

Calls should be made to 826-1000 as soon as patients are admitted to insure timeliness and accuracy. Collect calls will not be accepted for this purpose.

Registration Deadline Has Not Changed

The voter registration deadline for Pettis County remains unchanged despite the Oct. 5 special bond issue election, according to Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson, county clerk.

She explained that the County Court set Aug. 16 as the deadline to register for the Sept. 14 city election to build a new city hall.

Those who intend to vote in the Sept. 14 and the Oct. 5 elections must register by 5 p.m. Monday, Mrs. Wilson said.

Plan No Prosecution

In Kansas Abortion

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — The Decatur County attorney said Wednesday he does not plan to prosecute the Decatur County Hospital at Oberlin, Kan., for the one illegal abortion it has handled.

Three other county attorneys said they have not decided whether to prosecute three more hospitals where the operations were performed after a liberalized abortion law went into effect in Kansas on July 1, 1970.

The law requires that abortions be performed in accredited hospitals. The four hospitals are licensed by Kansas but not accredited.

The attorney general's office said it does not intend to prosecute since it is convinced the violations resulted from confusion about the new law.

The other three hospitals are Douglass in Kansas City, Kan., Lindsborg Community and Holton City.

Planning Bombing Discussion

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — The city's Equal Opportunity Administrative Council says it plan to ask for a meeting with Illinois Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to discuss bombing of construction equipment and problems of hiring blacks on Madison and St. Clair County construction projects.

The Rev. Louis Hemmers, committee chairman, said Wednesday he will send Ogilvie a letter asking him to help resolve issues affecting the number of black workers being hired on highway jobs in the area.

The committee has been watching development of the Ogilvie Plan to recruit minority workers in six highway construction jobs. The plan ended a 23-month freeze on federal highway building funds for the two counties last summer.

Explosions caused heavy damage Monday and Tuesday nights to a flatbed truck and a large construction crane in East St. Louis. The incident caused no injury.

A preliminary draft of the letter says only $36 million in road contracts has been awarded in the two counties since work resumed last year, although more than twice that amount has been advertised for letting by the state Division of Highways.

"The apparent reason for the lack of awards of contracts, is that the official estimate of the cost of construction on the various projects is considerably below contractors' bids," the committee wrote.

It suggested state officials and contractors try to reconcile their differences so more work can be awarded. A shortage of highway work has resulted in only a few black trainees being hired, the group said.

New Administrator Named For Hospital

SWEET SPRINGS — F. C. Dohrman was named administrator of the Sweet Springs Community Hospital at a meeting of the board of trustees Wednesday. Dohrman has been acting administrator for the last three months.

He reported that the hospital is now current on all of its financial obligations. He said donations from families for a new electrocardiogram machine now total $341.25.

Korean Riot

A policeman pours water on a burning police patrol car after it was set afire in Kwang Ju, South Korea, Tuesday during a six-hour riot. About 20,000 residents of a housing site in the city burned a provincial office and four cars. The residents, many removed as flood refugees, are demanding free land for homes. (UPI)

'Family' Controversy Continuing

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Reaction to 1971's most controversial television program continues with no middle ground: Viewers either love it or hate it. But any resemblance between the character of Archie Bunker of CBS' "All in the Family" and the veteran actor who plays him, Carroll O'Connor, is purely physical.

Archie is the embodiment of all the prejudices that have come to mean bigotry and racism. His appearance in a television series has been hailed on one side as healthy exposure while others suggest that he reinforces the narrow minded.

O'Connor won his bachelor's degree from the National University of Ireland, and his master's from the University of Montana. While his politics are private, his outlook generally is liberal and cosmopolitan.

"I'm not a member of any political party," O'Connor said, almost reluctantly. "I really don't care much for politics, and I just don't know what words like 'conservative' and 'liberal' mean anymore."

"When Roosevelt was president, a lot of people thought that a 'liberal' was pro labor, pro welfare and wanted to take care of people and a 'conservative' was pro big business and anti welfare. Now it is all mixed up."

O'Connor, rehearsing for one of next season's "All in the Family" episodes added:

"I grew up in New York, but I never heard Archie's kind of talk in my own family. Mine was a family of teachers—my mother, an aunt and an uncle. My father was a lawyer and was in partnership with two Jews, who with their families were close to us. There were two black families in our circle of friends. My father disliked talk like Archie's—he called it the hallmark of ignorance."

O'Connor's interest is in building Archie's character—"bigots have dimensions," he said with a grin.

"I've been told that Archie is a sort of hero to racists," he said. "What the hell! Let them have a hero, and if a foolish fellow like Archie is their hero in spite of this changed world, more's the pity."

African Swine Fever Danger Has Lessened

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says the immediate danger of African swine fever coming into the country from Cuba has lessened considerably.

In July, the department added Cuba to its list of countries where ASF exists, including France, Italy, Portugal, Spain and all African nations. Strict inspection and decontamination procedures were ordered for all ships, planes, articles and individuals entering from Cuba.

A spokesman for the Agricultural Research Service said Tuesday it appears the Cuban government has ASF well under control.

More than 400,000 hogs and pigs have been slaughtered in the Cuban ASF eradication campaign, according to reports passed on to U.S. officials, the spokesman said. No outbreaks of the disease have been reported in Cuba for more than a month.

No other cases of ASF have been reported in the western hemisphere outside of Cuba, the official said. An intensive program to prevent entry into Mexico is being conducted there.

African swine fever is characterized by department veterinarians as "potentially the most dangerous and destructive" of all swine diseases. There is no vaccine to prevent or control the disease.

The ARS official said most of the swine destroyed in Cuba were located in Havana province, with a large share in the capital itself. The custom is for one or two families in a city block to have a small hog herd and for all other families on the block to deliver their garbage to the pen for feed, the official said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's supply of fresh vegetables and melons this summer is down from last year, including decreases for celery, sweet corn, onions and tomatoes, says the Agriculture Department.

On a total basis, the summer vegetable crop is estimated at 66.6 million hundredweight, down two per cent from last year. Cantaloup and watermelon output is estimated at 29 million hundredweight, six per cent less.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration says it loaned a record $1.4 billion during the year ended June 30 to help nearly half a million low and moderate-income rural people build or improve homes.

The loans, financed by private investors and insured by the Agriculture Department agency, included 113,464 totaling nearly $1.37 billion made to families for construction or improvement of dwellings and 438 loans and grants totaling $28 million for rental housing.

Total FHA volume last fiscal year compared with combined loans of 73,891 with a value of $793.7 million in 1969-70. Those served approximately 300,000 persons, an FHA spokesman said.

James V. Smith, FHA administrator, said the loan volume tripled from two years earlier. The leading goal for housing during the current year is $1.6 billion, Smith said in a statement.

Martin Is Medford's Big Mystery on Television

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kay Medford, who has been in show business all her life, is having a new theatrical experience: trying to figure out Dean Martin's method.

"It is absolutely fantastic," the veteran Broadway and Hollywood actress said. "This year, you know, we have our little stock company in the show—we're starting 10 and 12 minute sketches to see how they work. We've been rehearsing and learning our lines all week. On Friday, Dean comes in and says, 'Hello, what are we doing today?' He has the cards to read of course, but somehow he manages to move smoothly around the stage in traffic jams of people and — incredible — he reads the cards the first time with the right expression. I don't know how he pulls it off, but the fact that he is so obviously reading the cards manages to heighten the comedy effect."

Miss Medford's long experience in Broadway musical comedy—she won a Tony a few years back as Barbra Streisand's mother in "Funny Face"—pays off in her dry, casual way with a comedy line. She obviously feels that she is back in familiar territory as a feature regular on Martin's show.

"They wanted me in 'To Rome, With Love,' although I had not been in the pilot," she said. "I was cast as John Forsythe's sister. So I leased a house, got a car and even brought my dog out here. Three months later I was on my way home—thank God I hadn't done anything about getting rid of my apartment in New York."

"But this time I'm living in a hotel—month by month."

Miss Medford was switched out and Walter Brennan in as they tried to bolster "To Rome" but it never got off the ground.

The Martin assignment started with a one-shot last season when Miss Medford called in to play the proud mother of Dean's accompanist, white-haired Ken Lane. The jokes went so well that more bits were done on the same theme.

Doing the sketches takes a little homework.

"To tell the truth," Miss Medford confessed, "I've been watching a lot of television lately to help me understand some of the jokes. I just didn't get some of the references. The other morning I got up at 7 so I could look at Ralph Nader and find out what he does. Actually, I just like to go to the theater out here, and then come home and look at old movies."

Arrives From Bogota

By TERRI DAUGHERTY
Youth Writer

Few Sedalians will ever see the beauty of Colombia, South America, but a beauty from South America has come to Sedalia for a year.

Miss Maria Consuelo Iannini, known as "Mariaco" by close friends, will be a senior at Smith-Cotton High School this fall as an American Service Exchange Student from Bogota, Colombia. Mariaco's American "parents" are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davis, Route 3.

She flew from Bogota to New York, then went to Chicago where she boarded a chartered bus for foreign exchange students going to Kansas City, giving her an excellent opportunity to see the United States. She arrived Sunday and met her American parents.

Mariaco comes from a family of seven children, four boys and three girls. She is the oldest girl and has one older brother. Her father is a doctor, an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. Mariaco's family will host an American Exchange Student from Wisconsin this summer.

Already she has noticed a significant difference between her home life and the American way of life.

"In my home we have two maids to do all the work, such as making beds, cooking, washing, cleaning and so on. It is not uncommon to have maids, most people do, except for the poor people. We do have some modern conveniences but very few, so it is necessary to have some one help with the housekeeping," Mariaco said.

The 17-year-old student's visit here is sponsored by the Sedalia chapter of the American Association of University Women.

Mariaco said, "Some of my hobbies include collecting post cards, playing a guitar and a tiple, which is a 12 string soprano guitar."

Her home city, she said, is located on a high plateau in central Colombia and has a population of approximately 2.5 million. The climate, she said, would compare to the fall season here. Two or three hours away from Bogota the temperature is usually 100 degrees and the land is very tropical, and primitive, Mariaco said.

"All the schools in Colombia are private; girls and boys attend separate schools. It is very expensive to acquire an education," she said. Mariaco graduated from Sacred Heart, a private girls school. She had an outstanding scholastic record in a school program which allows no choice of curriculum. Standard studies include such subjects as mathematics, physics, chemistry, biology, philosophy, English and French.

When she returns home she plans to attend the University of Javeriana as a second semester freshman, since the credits from Smith-Cotton will be transferred. Mariaco said, "I am interested in a career in public relations and publicity."

"Becoming an American Exchange Student has enabled me to further my knowledge about America and the people who live in it, to improve my English, help me learn about other religions, and to prepare for my career," said Mariaco.

Mr. Davis said, "We have always wanted to have an exchange student and thought this would be an appropriate time." Their own daughter, Jane, is a sophomore at Smith-Cotton. "We feel very fortunate to have such a wonderful girl living with us for a year. Our feelings are the same in many areas and we share many common interest," Mr. Davis said.

Mariaco says she is looking forward to attending Smith-Cotton and the activities of the school year.

Group Of Youths Tour The Capital

Recently a group of 25 youths from the Neighborhood Youth Corps toured Jefferson City. Included in the field trip were tours of the state Capital building, the Capital's museum, the Supreme Court building and Missouri State Conservation Commission.

Those attending from the Sedalia were Tom Butler, Melva Vison and Varren Grandfield.

Advice To Young Marrieds

(Democrat-Capital Service)

NEW YORK — With more and more young people marrying (almost 40 per cent of today's brides are between 14 and 18) and unpleasant statistics growing right along (divorce rates for those who married in their teens are estimated to be three or four times higher than for any other age group), what are a young couple's real chances today for success?

There are many young people happily married, according to a special report on "The Ups And Downs of Young Marriage" in the August Seventeen, but even these have their warnings for others. "You've got to be willing to be serious about life and understand that marriage means working and planning," points out a young man who married at 21 (his wife was 19). Another, who got married when he was 20 and his wife 17, says candidly, "I wouldn't advise any teen-agers to get married unless they have plenty of money. Two can't live as cheaply as one unless they're living in someone else's nest."

Opposition to teen marriage runs particularly strong among some college students. One girl, a college sophomore, sums up the reasons she and her friends believe teens should not marry:

1. Identity crisis: Between the ages of 17 and 25 most people are finding out who they are. Until they do, they should not enter into a relationship with another person.

2. Change in values: There is a good chance the person one valued at 18 will no longer be his choice at 25.

3. Desire for freedom and travel: There also comes a sense of wanting to get out and see the world. The teen-age couple has no time for this.

4. Parental pressures: Many parents turn against the pair. This results in emotional as well as other strains on the couple.

5. Economic problems: It's hard enough to find a good job after college! It's close to impossible to support the two of you and possibly a baby while finishing school.

In reply, one 17-year-old wife says, "I don't think age matters at all! You could get married at 19, 16 or you could get married at 32. It just depends on what you are."

Surprisingly, many girls say they don't consider money to be a problem. They seem to believe that "if you really were meant to be together" and love each other, the money won't matter.

Scouts On Tour Of Mexico

Thirty-three Girl Scouts and two chaperones from the Heart of Missouri Girl Scout Council will leave Friday for a nine-day tour of Mexico.

Miss Judy Jane Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Johnson, 720 West Broadway, is one of the participants in this area.

The chaperones for the trip are Mrs. R. C. Borg, Fayette, and Mrs. Richard Luebbering, Jefferson City.

The group will fly to San Antonio and travel by bus into Mexico, spending their first night at Monterey. The next four days the scouts will visit Mexico City, taking part in the folkloric ballet and bullfights; seeing the main square, the Cathedral, San Juan market, museum of anthropology, the pyramids and Shrine of Guadalupe.

The following two days will be spent traveling to Cuernavaca and Taxco. At Cuernavaca the girls will visit Our Cabana, one of the four Girl Scout World Centers. After visiting Taxco, they will return to Mexico and stay in the homes of various Mexican families.

The last day in Mexico will be a free one in which the girls may see other interesting sights or return to one of their favorites.

Miss Rebecca Z. Boone, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Boone, Columbia, won third place in the Boone County Fair Baby Contest, Aug. 6. Entered in the contest were 41 little girls who were judged on personality, pose and appearance. Rebecca's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Grover W. Renno, 623 West Fourth. Her great-grandfather is William S. Schmidt, 820 West Fourth.

Christian Church are having the project to raise money so Meshina Araia, Asmara, Ethiopia, can attend college this fall. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

The Christian Youth at the First Christian Church have joined together to help raise the needed scholarship funds so that Mesghina Araia, Asmara, Ethiopia, can come to America and attend college this fall at Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Mo.

As a group effort the youth of the church are handling the project entirely on their own and have received the support of the church Board of Trustees.

The goal set is $600 and so far, through tree will donations, $461 has been raised.

The young people expressed varying reasons for their involvement in the project.

"To show that we care about other people in other countries," said Martha Thomas, and Mary Dale said, "There are a couple of people in Missouri whom we could help but we decided to help this foreign student because probably he needs it more than others do."

To add to their goal the youth are having a "Watermelon Feast" to raise the additional money needed to reach their goal.

The watermelon feast will be held in the First Christian Church yard from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday. Tickets can be purchased at that time.

Soil Conservation Service in Fight

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal Soil Conservation Service, once an idol of environmentalists, is a villain now in a classic waterway conservation battle.

The focal point is a type of waterway modification called stream channelization.

A House Government Operations subcommittee has been holding hearings on the stream channelization problem, and the Soil Conservation Service is studying re-evaluations from its field offices of all its hundreds of authorized projects.

Channelization practices of the Soil Conservation Service, and the U.S. Corps of Engineers, were deplored by a long string of state wildlife and conservation officials, and representatives of conservation organizations, in testimony before Rep. Henry Reuss' Government Operations Subcommittee.

But the hearings also disclosed conflict within the government itself. Nathaniel P. Reed, who took office in May as assistant secretary of the Interior for fish, wildlife and parks, told the subcommittee:

"Stream channelization projects usually entail changing the physical shape of the stream bed and bank, regulating natural stream flow patterns and impounding or modifying the flood plain.

"If the emphasis on these practices continues, the ultimate result will be the destruction or serious degradation of valuable and irreplaceable natural resources, including stream fisheries and wildlife in many bottom lands and water-courses."

Taking note of this and other criticism of his agency, Administrator Kenneth Grant of the Soil Conservation Service told the subcommittee, "Some of the commentary has been very emotional, and very narrow in focus."

Channelization by the Soil Conservation Service most often is designed to alleviate flooding and improve drainage.

The service said that when projects authorized since 1960 are completed, more than 12,000 miles of waterways will have been channelized at a cost of more than $300 million.

Opponents contend channelization controls floods simply by quickly draining the water and sending it downstream to cause a flood from someone else, which in turn generates more flood-control projects.

But most of the witnesses before Reuss' subcommittee based their opposition to the practice on the contention that it adversely affects wildlife and damages natural resources.

For example, Reed said studies by the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission showed production of game fish species was reduced by 90 per cent in eastern North Carolina after channelization. Studies in Montana, Florida and Missouri, he said, showed losses of 80 to 99 per cent of stream productivity.

William E. Towell of the American Forestry Association, testified: "I witnessed almost complete disappearance of what we called our delta hardwoods down in southeast Missouri from land drainage and clearing as a result of drainage and channelization."

Louis S. Clapper of National Wildlife Federation, discussing channelization of Gilbert Run, a small stream that originates near Waldorf, Md., runs 11 miles into the Wicomico River, said: "What had been a beautiful, meandering stream, the home of beaver colonies, waterfowl, and fresh-water game fish, as well as the spawning grounds for anadromous fish such as herring and perch, has degenerated into a straight, silt-laden channel."

Grant said the environment has always been of primary concern to the Soil Conservation Service, and many of the conservation spokesmen lauded the service's earlier soil conservation work. They charged, however, that it has become too engineer-and construction oriented in recent years.

Contrary to opponents' claims of channel erosion, Grant said "We feel that over the long run, the interrelated land treatment measures and that this will have a positive and improved effect on water quality."

He contended that most streams on which channel improvement measures are carried out are at best only poor to fair fisheries because they are intermittently blocked by sand, silt or vegetative debris. Increases in some low stream flows improve fish habitat, he said.

"Channel improvement has a very beneficial effect in reducing flood damage to residential, commercial and agricultural lands, and in removing excess surface and subsurface waters that interfere with their effective and efficient use," Grant said.

"There are some people who have looked at these projects without considering the problems associated with the well-being of the agricultural community, the well-being of the small towns and communities that are associated with flooding. And when you focus in on a single resource, I think then you begin to get too narrow in your focus of an overview."

"That doesn't mean that a single resource isn't important, because it obviously is. It is one of the things that makes up the total. But the responsibility that we have in the Soil Conservation Service, working with the local sponsors, is to try to get the proper mix of all of those interests."

Channelization foes contend the environmental interest is not getting its share of the proper mix.

Back in Business

The Mr. Swiss drive-in restaurant, 821 Thompson Blvd., re-opened for business Aug. 4 under the new management of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Richards, 1831 South Barrett. The restaurant was

Big Piney Pollution Restriction Enacted

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Missouri Water Pollution Board enacted a regulation Wednesday prohibiting sewage discharges into the Big Piney River after Dec. 31, 1973.

"The Big Piney is a highly valued recreational stream, whose water quality is impaired by the discharge of treated wastewater. The inhabitants of the Big Piney watershed are indignant at the abuse of the Big Piney and rightly so," the board said.

The new regulation will mean the cities of Cabool, Houston, Licking and the Ft. Leonard Wood Army Base will have to find new ways of disposing of wastes.

Jack Smith, executive secretary of the board, which met in south St. Louis County, said the Army base is considered the largest polluter of the Big Piney. The once-clear stream, which goes through wooded land in Pulaski and Texas counties, has developed an overgrowth of plant life which conservationists say is choking the stream.

Smith said the board had already adopted more stringent standards for the Big Blue and Little Blue rivers in the Kansas City area and the Grand Glaize and Fishpot creeks in St. Louis County.

In other action, the board set Sept. 23 for a hearing on location of a sewage disposal plant near Monnett, Mo. A hearing date of Sept. 29 was set for a similar hearing at Binder Lake in Cole County.

Property owners on a tributary of Shoal Creek in Barry County are protesting the proposed location of the disposal plant downstream from Monnett.

The board heard complaints from Jackson County residents regarding the proposed location of the Burr Oak Lagoon near Blue Springs. Another group, from the St. Charles area, complained about lagoons maintained by Fee Fee Trunk Sewer, Inc., near the Missouri River.

Russell Grantham, vice president of the Fee Fee firm, criticized the board for not following the law in connection with its refusal to grant sewer connecting permits in an area of northwest St. Louis County. He said his firm has never been notified of violating any state pollution laws, nor has it been granted the right to a hearing on the sewer connection ban.

The board held a hearing in Hillsboro Wednesday and it criticized the lack of effective pollution controls in northeast Jefferson County.

A report presented on water pollution problems included the finding that 110 of 142 treatment facilities are not operated properly.

Smith said one thing the county could do immediately to attack the problems is "implement the county-wide sewer plan."

He referred to a plan drawn up last October.

Campers Enjoy Stay Here

Sedalia has won the hearts of the National Travellers Club (NTC) members staying at the Missouri State Fair campgrounds for their sixth annual rally this week.

Numerous campers revealed that local hospitality has been "great" from merchants and residents alike.

Mrs. Orval Adams, Raytown, wife of the NTC's president, described the treatment received as "royal."

Jack Guice, Baltimore, Md., said the camping facilities here are the best that most members have seen since their yearly rallies began.

Adams said a chapter of the Masonic-sponsored organization will probably be started locally.

A few of the campers plan to stay around for the State Fair, according to Adams. As of Wednesday night, over 580 people were on hand at the rally in some 250 vehicles.

The rally was scheduled to wind up Thursday with "tear-down" operations set for Friday.

Sights for the casual onlooker at the campsite since Monday have ranged from the ordinary to the unusual. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Snapp, Springfield, Ohio, have a spinet type organ in their 18½-foot tandem axle trailer. Complete with a tape recording and loud speaker system, the Snapps have traveled over various parts of the country furnishing organ music for horse shows, religious gatherings and wherever such music was desired. For eight years Mrs. Snapp had to contend with the elements, playing in all types of weather, but four years ago the Snapps decided to move the instrument inside.

One camper-vehicle in use by an NTC member is lead-lined. The huge GMC truck presents a formidable spectacle since it was once used as an armored car.

Several handicapped individuals were also on hand at the rally. Paul Killion, Lincoln, Neb., a stroke victim, and his wife, belong not only to the NTC, but also to a Nebraska camping organization. The Killions were recently honored as Eastern Nebraska NTC king and queen, designated the ideal camping family.

Wednesday's events included a water-balloon fight between five adults and a large number of the 75 teenagers on hand, and a Liar's Contest, which was won by an Oklahoman.

The winner of the longest-distance competition was expected to be a family from San Diego, Calif. Camper ages ranged from under one year to the several octogenarians at the rally.

The annual NTC rally has doubled in attendance each year, just as membership in the organization has, according to Guice.

Activities during the rally included hayrides, daily bingo, pot luck suppers and a dance Wednesday evening. Pulling power for the hayrides was provided by a pair of Missouri mules furnished by Olen Howard, Sedalia.

The final activities, such as teen-queen and teen-king contests were to be held Thursday. Also, the official meeting of the NTC, including an election of new officers, was scheduled for Thursday.

Next year the rally is to be held in Connecticut.

THE CONTENTS OF THIS NEWSPAPER IS KID STUFF.

73% of young people aged 14 through 25 read a newspaper yesterday.

This — and a number of other important facts — comes from a major new study conducted by Gilbert Youth Research. If you advertise and sell in this city, the Gilbert Study can show you how to do both — better.

For example, it shows that 42% of young men read car ads 3 times a week or more; that 74% of young women out of school read fashion news—and 81% read fashion advertising—3 times a week or more.

But kids aren't kids forever. And the study shows that learning to read a newspaper is part of growing up. As young people grow and acquire more responsibilities — and spend more to meet them — they read newspapers more.

84% of young people with family incomes of $10,000 or more read a newspaper yesterday. That's more than the 78% average for all adults. And 86% of young people who have married read a newspaper yesterday.

We have all of the facts from the Gilbert Study in a little booklet. If you want to do better business, you should know what these facts are. Write to us for a free copy.

Putting it bluntly, it'll help you make more money.

Dentist Offers Kids Suggestions

Dear Ann Landers: I am a San Francisco dentist who reads your column faithfully. Every day I am appalled by the ignorance and stupidity of parents. It occurred to me that the best way to educate people is to write to Ann Landers. Will you serve as the conveyor belt between thousands of dentists and millions of parents? Here are the basic guidelines:

1. Don't wait until your child has a toothache before you take him to the dentist. He will then associate the dentist with pain and establish an irreversible, life-long fear of dentistry.

2. Don't ignore cavities in baby teeth because "they fall out eventually" and don't matter. They DO matter, and should be well cared for to insure the proper alignment of second teeth.

3. Don't use scare words when you talk about the dentist. Expressions such as "needle" and "pull the tooth out" should be avoided. Tell the child the dentist will "put your tooth to sleep" and "wiggle it out."

4. Don't bribe your child to go to the dentist. This raises many questions and makes the child apprehensive.

5. Don't insist on going into the workroom with the child. He will do better if you let him know he is grown up enough to go in without you.

6. Don't permit your child to eat candy and other sweets all day long. Substitute raisins, dried prunes, apricots and fresh fruit. Sugarless gum is good, too.

7. Begin early to teach your child the importance of caring for his teeth and gums. Habits established early will stay with him the rest of his life. I am not looking for publicity, so I'll sign. — No Signature.

Dear No Sig: Thank you for taking your valuable time to write. The teeth you saved might be my grandchildren.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14 years old (a girl) and I have a gripe rather than a problem. It's my father. Every morning I am supposed to bring him a cup of hot coffee the minute he opens his eyes and yells for it. I am also supposed to bring the newspaper and his glasses. I don't mind doing this, but he is not a person who has a lot of patience, especially in the morning. If he doesn't get his coffee and paper and glasses immediately, he blows his cool.

The problem is his glasses. He never leaves them in the same place two nights in a row. I never know where to look. Sometimes I look in eight places before I find them. This morning they were in the medicine cabinet. I figured it out when I found the toothpaste on the telephone table.

When I ask Dad to give me a clue as to where to look he says, "There are none so blind as those who will not see!" I hate this cliché. How can I cure him? — Chewed Over Cabbage.

Dear Cabbage: No way. Just don't ask him for any clues and he won't get the chance to chew his cabbage so many times. Some people set themselves up for aggravation.

Dear Ann Landers: It shocks me the way you hand out life and death advice — right off the top of your head. Don't realize some people live by what you say? How do you know you're always right? — No Mavin.

Dear N.M.: Nobody is right all the time, and I do make mistakes. But the advice you describe as "off the top of my head" sometimes represents hours of research. People who write to me need a definite answer. More people suffer from the inability to make a decision than from making the wrong one.

How far should a teen-age couple go? Can necking be safe? When does it become too hot to handle? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking And Petting — What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Unwritten Plane Crash For Stuntman

MT. HOPE, Kan. (AP) — Stunt pilot Frank Tallman, survivor of several hundred planned crashes in motion pictures, encountered one in Kansas Tuesday that wasn't in the script.

Tallman and his passenger, actress Bernadette Peters, escaped injury when a sudden gust of wind caught Tallman's 54-year-old biplane, nosing it into a field 10 miles west of Mt. Hope.

Tallman was flying Miss Peters for a scene in "Ace Eli and Rodger of The Skies," being shot by 20th Century Fox. Tallman doubles for Cliff Robertson, who stars in the movie.

The vintage plane was only a few feet off the ground when a gust of wind shoved the lower left wing into the recently harvested field, spinning the craft in a 360-degree circle as the wing and propeller dug into the earth. The craft was extensively damaged.

Producer Robert Fryer says non-flying scenes will be filmed until Tallman reads another aircraft for the scene.

People in the News

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was joined by several of his top staff members for a Tuesday night cruise on the Potomac River and it appeared to be a political gathering.

With him on the yacht Sequoia were Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Henry Dent, Nixon's special counsel. The presence of the two indicated the cruise may have been political since Mitchell was Nixon's 1968 campaign manager and Dent is one of the President's top political advisers.

Others on hand included Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's chief adviser on national security affairs and evangelist Billy Graham, a personal friend.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Singer Tom Jones has denied charges that he gave a professional boxer a beating.

Jones denied in Circuit Court any knowledge of the alleged dispute with Michael J. Maret of Miami Beach, Fla., which allegedly took place after a singing engagement at the Dane County Coliseum here June 7.

Maret, a boxer, is seeking $60,000 in damages for his alleged injuries.

SHELburne, Mass. (AP) — Comedian Bill Cosby has bought a 15-room home on an 18-acre estate for $65,000.

The home is approximately 20 miles from Amherst where Cosby plans to enter the University of Massachusetts School of Education this fall.

Cosby, 34, originally said he planned to give up show business for a teaching career, but later said he will do some television specials and other projects.

He and his family are expected to move into the home about Sept. 1.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sander Vanocur, veteran correspondent for NBC News, is resigning so he can work on several projects, including a book on government and the media.

"I miss reporting and I don't like sitting behind a desk," Vanocur was quoted as telling Reuven Frank, president of NBC News.

Vanocur, who took over as anchorman on WNBC-TV's 6 p.m. newscast in April, plans to leave the post around Labor Day.

SAIGON (AP) — Miss America and six other U.S. beauty queens arrived in Saigon today for a 22-day tour of U.S. bases in Vietnam and a visit to the U.S. 7th Fleet in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Miss America 1971, Phyllis George of Denton, Tex., and her court were greeted by an Army band at Tan Son Nhut air base.

In addition to Miss George, taking part in the USO-sponsored tour are Vicky Jo Todd, Miss Nevada; Hela Jungst, Miss New Jersey; Karen Shields, Miss Arizona; Donna Connelly, Miss Arkansas; Cheryl Brown, Miss Iowa, and Belinda Myrick, the new Miss Texas.

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — Juan Corona, the farm labor contractor accused of hacking 25 men to death and burying them in orchards, apparently has suffered a second heart attack.

Corona, 37, was brought to Sutter County Hospital on Friday from his jail cell in Marysville complaining of chest pains. Corona suffered what was described as a mild heart attack in June and doctors said Tuesday tests showed that he apparently suffered another seizure. It was not immediately determined if the second was more serious than the first.

Corona's trial is scheduled to begin in October.

For Women

Hair Length Is Old Argument

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "As our current longhairs grow into their 40s and 50s the younger generation is going to say 'Look at those creeps' and cut their own hair short," predicts social historian Bill Severn.

At least that's what will happen if hair cycles continue to run as they have throughout history, says the author of "The Long and Short of It, Five Thousand Years of Fun and Fury over Hair."

The roots of the hair controversy—its presence or absence, its length or brevity, and even its color—go further back than Samson's unwanted haircut, and people have always been persecuted for wearing their hair differently, Severn points out.

"It was very common to be fired from a job, to be beaten up, jailings and forced cutting of hair have been going on forever. In the mid-19th century the Bank of England ruled its clerks were not to wear mustaches 'during business hours' and Englishmen refused to send their sons to schools where headmasters and teachers had long hair."

"The fury of it was what amazed me, the frantic emotional feeling all the way from the early Christian years to now," continues Severn, who did extensive research, dug into style books and combed periodicals and newspaper files for information about hair. "It's amazing to find day by day in the 'Times Index' at one period as many listings on bobbed hair as on state department developments. Everybody was sounding off."

The advent of bobbed hair in the 1920s, he adds, resulted in repercussions as strong as those of the present long hair fad that he credits the Beatles with starting. Men sought divorces because their wives had bobbed their hair and other men refused to shave for the same reason.

"The general pattern has been that one era is long hair and the next short, some periods running as long as 100 years. It always takes almost a generation to establish a new style, but this latest change has been an exception, the fastest ever, in just six years. Modern-ately long hair has now become establishment."

Television, Severn says, is a strong influence, even more so than the days when styles were set by movie idols, such as Rudolph Valentino with the patent leather look and Veronica Lake with long eye-covering locks.

Before that it was royalty who, either by example or edict, determined hair fashions. The Roman Emperor Hadrian and, much later, France's King Francis I both grew beards to hide facial scars, with their subjects following their example. Toward the end of the 17th century, when most Westerners had shaved their beards, Peter the Great in his efforts to Westernize Russia imposed a tax on beards and mustaches.

"If there's hair on the head there's none on the face and vice versa," Severn notes. "Whenever hair is long faces have been clean shaven. When hair goes short men tend to wear mustaches and beards. Again the present-day style is the exception."

Women's hair, too, has gone in cycles, he says. "When women's hair gets as fussy and fancy as it can be they just let it go straight for awhile and when it has been hanging down for awhile it begins to build up again gradually. When it gets to be too much trouble to take care of women revolt to simplicity again."

Campus controversy over the issue of hair is centuries old, the author reports, with the "savage hair" of students being criticized by the older generation even in the early days of Harvard. The college in 1655 issued a ruling that it should not "bee lawfull for any to weare Long Haire, Locks or foretops" or "to use Curling, Crisping, Parting or Powdering."

Even the lament of barbers is not new, though at the start of the 19th century it was the shortshairs who evoked their wrath. The barbers in Washington, who had kept busy powdering heads and dressing queues, complained that the Jeffersonians who cut their hair short were ruining the whole industry.

"There is much more fury over men's hair than women's," Severn says. "The tendency has been for men to criticize changes in women's fashion but everybody criticizes changes in men's fashions."

Severn wears his own hair combed straight back and at establishment length. "I don't have enough hair left to bother with," he laughs. "I've kept mine the same way, figuring the cycle will catch up with me if I live long enough."

Never A Dull Moment For Writer, Producer

By KELLY O'BRIEN
Philadelphia Inquirer Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — What would you do if all of a sudden you found yourself in a phone booth at Kennedy International Airport talking to a contact in the underground resistance movement in Greece?

Well, if you were Jill Marti, writer, actress and producer of a talk show for WCAU-TV, Philadelphia, you would naturally catch the next flight to Greece and film a documentary for NBC's "First Tuesday" series.

For a girl like her, it's all in a day's work.

Actually she hasn't always been a superwoman. After taking her B. S. (with honors) in political science at the University of Wisconsin, she says, "I didn't know what I wanted to do. I didn't want to go to work. I didn't want to stay at home either. Then I thought, why not go into communications?"

"As a political science major I was interested in government, particularly in the developing nations, and I thought, why not communications in this area?" That's why Jill Marti came to Philadelphia—to get her master's degree at the Annenberg School of Communications at the University of Pennsylvania.

While I was in a class one day there was a speaker from TV Guide Magazine—well I went up to him after his lecture, introduced myself and told him I needed a summer job. He said he'd see what he could do. He talked to the dean about me, but by that time he'd already decided he liked my smile, and I got a job as a researcher in the magazine's editorial department.

"I worked there the rest of the summer doing rewrites, features, columns and articles till one day I got a phone call from the top brass at the magazine. They told me, very politely, they were sorry but they really wanted to let me go."

"I was so upset. I couldn't imagine what I had done."

"That's when they told me Cleveland Amory was leaving the magazine (he was a critic) to do his own television show and he wanted me to go with him as a writer."

"I was so relieved, and I couldn't believe this was happening to me."

With the Amory show Jill went from writer, to associate producer, to producer.

When the show went off the air, Jill kept busy as writer, co-host and associate producer for a number of WCAU-TV prime-time specials. When she wasn't on the air she wrote and produced other shows. But even with all her talent, she eventually ran out of things to do.

There she was. Twenty-four years old, out of work and not a thing to do.

"My parents were planning a trip to Greece, and my mother suggested I go with them. Big whoop. What's a girl like me going to do in Greece with her parents? But the longer I sat there with nothing to do, the better the Greece trip started to look. I decided to go."

"Then something extraordinary happened. I got hold of an issue of Life Magazine and saw a Norman Mailer story in it I wanted to read. I started going through the magazine, and there was another story, one about Greece: Government by Torture. I was horrified. If this story is true, then I didn't want to go there and give them a dime of my money. I thought, 'I made a bunch of phone calls—the writer of Life, the embassy and got hold of no one, they were all out.'

"Well I didn't cancel the trip. I checked into Kennedy for my flight to Athens—and made one last effort to get in touch with Life Magazine reporter Christopher Rand."

"I got him on the phone and explained who I was and that I had read the story. I told him I didn't have a legitimate outlet for a documentary film just then, but that if his story checked out, I wanted to do one. I gave him the phone number in my booth."

"The whole trip to Greece was like something out of a spy movie, only it was really happening. I did film a report and when I got back to the states I walked into 'First Tuesday,' and they bought my film."

After her free-lance work with "First Tuesday," Jill settled into a job as producer-reporter of another WCAU-TV daily talk and variety show hosted by the wife of New Jersey's Governor

Hughes, "Betty Hughes & Friends."

The associate producer on the program says the show's her life—she lives with it during the day and takes it home with her at night.

Jill agrees. She says, "I'm always listening to what people are talking about and interested in. I try to incorporate that into our programs."

The last of the season's "Betty Hughes & Friends" was shot not long ago and the show is in its summer reruns. That means Jill was forced with another two months with nothing to do.

But she wanted to travel, so she called the American Friends Service and asked them that if there was anything she could do, they should let her know.

"I'm not a Quaker," said Jill. "I just like the things they stand for. They called me back and asked how I would like traveling in the East. The East—I thought they meant New York, Boston, Washington—no, they said, they meant the Far East. It seems the Quakers have projects they sponsor all over the world. And in addition, there is a diplomatic conference scheduled in the Philippines this summer to discuss the problems of Southeast Asia."

"Of course I said I would go."

How to Remove Tabby Odors

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. R. S. whose cat had an accident on the way to the vet which left an odor she cannot remove from the car carpet — Having three cats we have had the identical problem. I had had little luck until I made a thick solution of borax hand cleaner and water, rubbed the offending spots with a sponge, let dry, vacuumed and had no trace of a stain or odor. — MRS. C. J. F.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Mrs. R. S. that she can remove the odor of cat urine from her car by sponging the carpet with a solution of equal parts of vinegar and water and blot up several times. This may have to be repeated as it was not done immediately. The vinegar odor will leave in a short time. — MRS. C. J. B.

DEAR POLLY — My husband and I sympathize with Mrs. R. S., whose cat had an accident in the car. When we had this experience we washed the soiled area with a strong solution of ammonia and then put moth crystals over the entire area. The car must be left open for several days to speed the drying and ventilation. — MARILYN

DEAR READERS — An often suggested remedy for removing the stains from animal accidents is to wash with one pint of water to which 1/4-cup of salt has been added and then with a solution of one part ammonia to 20 parts water. — POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know how to get the creases out of corduroy where it has been hemmed and ironed. Also other kinds of fabrics. — B. J. R.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the florists. It would be such a help if they would get the complete name and address of persons sending flowers and put all this on the enclosed card. Often such information is not readily available for writing "Thank You" notes. It would be especially helpful when flowers are sent to a funeral. — DOLL

DEAR POLLY — We go on frequent trips and, when we walked into the house on our return, there used to be a stale odor which bothered me. Now I place a cut half of a lemon in each room and the air is fresh and sweet-smelling. I also leave the wastebaskets washed and a fresh paper bag in each. When I am at home, I run a fresh lemon through the garbage disposal and this freshens the kitchen and the disposal, too. Do hope this interesting column keeps going for a long, long time. — LILLIAN

Thanks, Lillian, so do I. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To teach a little daughter how to set the table properly, cut a picture from a magazine that shows one correctly set place setting and paste this on the cupboard door where she can refer to it. — ARLENE

Democrats Open Arms For Lindsay

NEW YORK (AP) — Leading Democrats have generally welcomed New York Mayor John V. Lindsay to their party but there was little upper echelon enthusiasm over his potential as a possible presidential candidate in 1972.

Republican reaction to the long-anticipated Lindsay switch Wednesday ranged from the view that it was overdue to expressions of loss by some liberal members. The White House had no comment.

In his announcement, Lindsay scored the Nixon administration and said his shift "represents a renewed decision to fight for new national leadership." Whether this means I will run for president I do not know.

"I welcome John Lindsay to the Democratic party," said Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien in an eight-word statement.

A welcome was also extended by Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, one of a number of Democrats already eyeing the presidency. Of the mayor's presidential possibilities, Jackson has said: "If you joined the church one Sunday, you cannot expect to be chairman of the board of deacons the next Sunday."

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, an announced candidate for the Democratic nomination, commented, "The only thing I can say about the conversion is 'Amen.'"

"But I did not come to New York to convince another candidate to run for president," he continued, and suggested that Lindsay might want to nominate "George McGovern for president."

Lindsay's criticism of the Nixon administration was echoed by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the Democratic presidential candidate in 1968 and a possible contender in 1972.

He said the switch "undoubtedly reflects the views of many hundreds of thousands of voters who supported the Nixon-Agnew ticket in 1968 and have now come to realize they made a mistake."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, considered the front runner for the Democratic nomination, welcomed Lindsay and said his shift was a sign "he can no longer accept Republican politics especially as they affect our urban areas."

Asked if Lindsay might make a strong Democratic candidate for the presidency, Muskie said he had "no firm judgment" on the matter.

In Indiana, home state of Sen. Birch Bayh, another Democrat weighing a bid for the nomination, Gordon St. Angelo, state Democratic chairman, said, "The addition of people like Mayor Lindsay in the ranks of the Democratic party only substantiates and strengthens this move away from the destructive and unimaginative policies of the Nixon administration."

Republican National Chairman, Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, said the shift came as no surprise adding, "I assume that he will soon be joining the ranks of Democratic presidential hopefuls."

"I'm not so certain the switch is bad news for Republicans because I think for some time John Lindsay has been backed by the Democrats," Dole said.

Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California, who plans to challenge Nixon's renomination in several primaries, said, "I regret that another good Republican has been driven out of the party."

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon commented, "I feel the Republican party can ill afford to lose anyone at a time when registrations are running so badly against us. John Lindsay's switch is a major loss to our party."

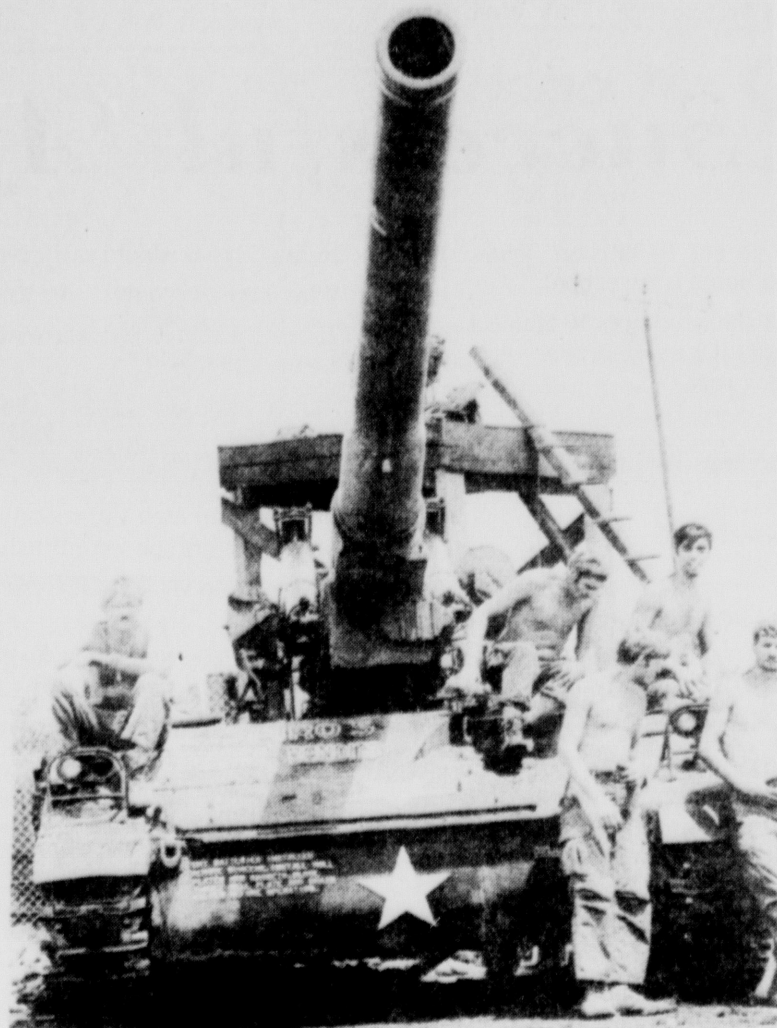

Some of the most enthusiastic responses came from some of his fellow mayors. In Chicago, Mayor Richard Daley said, "I'm delighted to see the mayor of the great city of New York has finally seen the light."

"Democrats are always pleased to welcome lost sheep into the fold," declared Detroit's Mayor Roman Gribbs. "He will be a great addition to the party. He is an effective and articulate spokesman for the needs of the people of America's core cities."

And Wes Uhlman of Seattle, a liberal Democrat, volunteered that, like those already in the race, Lindsay "would make an outstanding presidential candidate."

Former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, who himself made a try for the Democratic nomination in 1968, said:

"I know, no special reason why he should not seek the presidency as a Democrat if he so wishes. In the American tradition there is no prescribed waiting period."

Berrigan in Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The Rev. Philip Berrigan, the anti-war priest, and 10 other inmates from the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury, Conn., arrived in Springfield around 1 a.m. CDT, today.

Newsmen at the scene said Father Berrigan was among five or six inmates aboard one of two twin-engine chartered aircraft. All were dressed in prison fatigues and were handcuffed.

They walked about 40 feet from the aircraft and boarded a bus from the medical center for federal prisoners in Springfield.

The director of the medical center is scheduled to release a statement later today on the arrival.

Danbury Warden John J. Norton said "A small number of inmates, including Philip Berrigan, were involved in a hunger strike. In accordance with the Bureau of Prison policy they were placed under medical care, and because of the limited hospital space available at the Danbury institution the decision was made to move them."

Father Berrigan's brother Daniel, also a Roman Catholic priest, will remain at Danbury, Norton said. The Berrigans are serving prison sentences on charges of destroying draft records in Cantonville, Md.

The hunger strike began last Friday by five inmates protesting imprisonment of the Berrigans and other "political prisoners." The five said the strike would continue until a number of demands were met, including a "speedy release" for Father Daniel Berrigan, who has been ill, and an early parole hearing for Philip.

One of the five original hunger strikers was Ted Glick, who with Philip Berrigan and seven others is accused in Harrisburg, Pa., of conspiring to kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and destroy federal facilities.

Compromise To Reagan On California Welfare

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The California Legislature has sent Gov. Ronald Reagan a scaled-down compromise version of the massive welfare reform plan he submitted last March.

The Republican governor's office said he would sign it Friday, along with a bill overhauling the Medi-Cal program of free health care for the poor.

The welfare program will go into effect Oct. 1, the new Medi-Cal program with Reagan's signature.

The reforms fall several hundred million dollars short of the total $700 million Reagan had hoped to save in the programs this year. But he said the reform bills "contain most of the tools we will need to control growth, reduce abuse and prosecute fraud."

Without the reforms, Reagan had predicted that all welfare costs, including health care, would have cost California $4 billion this year. With reforms, that would be cut by about $350 million.

The state still would have a deficit of $300 million to $350 million in its $6.8 billion state budget.

The legislature plans a three-week recess and will return after Labor Day to consider tax reform, a tax increase and legislative and congressional reapportionment.

Reagan had set welfare reform as his prime goal this year.

The welfare bill passed the Assembly 62 to 9 and the Senate 31 to 8 Wednesday. Both houses are controlled by Democrats, but the compromise already had been worked out in secret negotiations between Reagan and Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti of Van Nuys, who has said he may run for governor in 1974.

Major provisions of the 100-point welfare reform:

—A shift in payment schedules which will give two-thirds of the state's 2.5 million recipients raises in monthly grants—for example, from $261 to $280 a month for a mother with three children. Those who have some income outside of welfare payments will get less.

—Heavier responsibility on relatives to take care of indigent kin. Grown-up children could have to pay as much as $175 a month support to their aged parents.

—A highly modified version of the public work force Reagan had planned for able-bodied recipients who refused to work or join a work training program. The compromise calls merely for a demonstration project.

—Stricter eligibility standards. A recipient would not get as many exemptions and special allowances as under the current plan.

—A one-year residence requirement in any county where the current unemployment rate is 6 per cent or more. Critics predict this section will be declared unconstitutional. Also, payments are cut off to anyone who is out of the state more than 60 days instead of the current one year.

You have 90 days to love them or leave them.

Secret of a Successful 'Affair'

By ART BUCHWALD

(Many years ago Art Buchwald discovered you can have an affair and still keep your marriage intact. This is how it can be done.)

One of the problems of being married and having young children is that much of the romance goes out of people's lives. A friend of mine has solved the problem. Every week he has an "affair" with his wife.

Buchwald What he does is he kisses his wife good-bye in the morning and goes off to work. About noon he calls her up and whispers, "This is George. Is your husband home?"

His wife replies, "No, the oaf has gone off to the office."

"I've got to see you this afternoon," the husband says.

"I can't. I've got to be here when the children come home from school."

"Get one of the neighbors to take care of them. Tell them it's an emergency and you have to go into town."

"Do I dare?"

"Please, darling, we don't have much time together."

"I'm frightened."

"I love you."

"I'll come. Where shall we meet?"

"Somewhere where no one will recognize us. I'll pick you up on the corner of F and 14th Street, at 3 o'clock."

The wife arranges for the neighbors to take care of the children and gets dressed up in her prettiest suit. She then drives into town, parks two blocks away and waits on the corner.

Her husband pulls up. She glances around fast and then hops in. "I think I was seen, darling," she says nervously.

"Relax," the husband says comfortingly.

"Where are we going?" she asks.

"There's a motel just across the bridge. We'll check in there."

"But we have no luggage," she protests.

"I'll check in. You stay in the car and then we'll drive to the room."

After they get into the room she laughs, "I didn't even bring a toothbrush."

"I thought about you all week," he says, kissing her.

"So did I," she replies. "I waited for this moment. I thought it would never come."

"I wanted to call you, but I was afraid HE would answer the phone."

"He wouldn't stop watching television to answer the phone. Does your wife know about us?"

"She's too busy taking care of the kids to know about anything. I told my secretary if she called to tell her I was out at a conference."

"How long can we go on like this?"

"Let's just be grateful for what we've got."

"If we'd only met each other before."

"I feel that way, too."

At 6 o'clock they check out of the motel, and my friend drops his wife off at F and 14th. "Until next week, my darling," he says as he kisses her.

"It will seem like a year," she says tearfully.

She hops out of the car without turning back.

An hour later her husband arrives home. "Anything happen today?" he asks casually, as he pecks her on the cheek.

"The same dull routine. Anything happen with you?"

"No, just another crummy day," he yawns. They both smile inwardly and sit down to dinner.

President Deliberate In Moves

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — By the original calculations of the Nixon administration it would take something over two years to gain control of the executive branch of the government. The time was needed to replace the holdovers with Nixon men and to get the feel of how men work with one another.

It will be noted that a little over two years (actually two years and three months) was up in late April or early May of this year.

The Nixon strategists had calculated that to control the government it would be necessary to control 300 key positions. But they decided it would be safer to go for 1,200, 900 more than their calculations had shown to be absolutely necessary.

Of course, for a variety of reasons, Nixon men were put into other posts as well, sometimes to meet the demands of patronage, sometimes because a special task demanded a man with a Nixon philosophy.

If we assume the shakedown period is over, then perhaps the real Nixon presidency is now getting under way.

But don't expect rapid moves or quick results even though there are signs Nixon wants desperately to press radically new approaches, as witness the China visit, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) with the Russians and welfare reform with a guaranteed minimum income.

For the careful, step-by-step movement outlined in the paragraphs above is typical Nixon's approach to the presidency. He is moving into his "radical" innovative concepts by a frustratingly cautious path.

For example, look at 2½ years of planning, the giving of signals, the waiting for return signals, the careful analysis and testing of those signals, the refusing to move until he was absolutely certain that preceded the Kissinger trip to Peking.

It was not until Nixon received a definite invitation from Premier Chou En-lai himself, sent through the president of a friendly state, that Nixon moved.

The President is operating in the same frustratingly cautious and patient manner in the Middle East crisis. Though the possibility of a partial settlement (the opening of the Suez Canal) seems possible, the chances of an end to the Israeli-Arab crisis seem remote indeed. Yet Nixon plods along, working to open the negotiating door a little every time it seems about to slam shut with finality, paying no attention to hard words from either side, sending Secretary of State William Rogers, then Assistant Secretary Joseph Sisco, then operating through third countries and unofficial representatives, slowly keeping some sort of movement, however inconsequential and however unpromising, in the belief that these slight motions in themselves may prevent the area from erupting until such time as an opportunity for a solution presents itself.

Nixon approached the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with Russia in the same way. Even after Moscow's leadership had made it clear the Kremlin would welcome talks, the President waited, waited and waited until some observers gave up in despair.

The Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia gave Nixon a sound reason for waiting, of course. But even had there been no Czech invasion, it is most probable that Nixon would have waited just as long before acting.

For it was months before Nixon's disarmament strategists had recalculated again all possible angles of all possible forms of arms control and before U.S. diplomats had explored again every angle of Russian intent, political, military, economic and psychological. Then Nixon moved — but slowly.

State Sewer Bonds A Good Investment

On Oct. 5 Missourians will vote on several propositions in a special election, one of which is especially important to Sedalians.

This is the proposed $150 million bond issue to build sewage treatment facilities throughout the state in an effort to drastically reduce water pollution. Of this amount, $275,550 is earmarked for Sedalia.

It would be combined with about $315,000 in local funds, part of a $3 million sewer bond issue passed by Sedalians in 1963 to improve the city's sewage facilities. An additional $606,209 in matching federal funds is included to cover the total cost of the local improvements.

The catch is that the federal money will not be provided unless state and local governments pay their combined 50 per cent share. That's where the bond issue comes in.

One attractive feature of the bond issue approach is that it will not require a special tax to pay off the bonds. The money will be provided by the Legislature out of general revenue funds over the 10-year period of upgrading the state's sewage facilities.

The money will enable the city to build a badly-needed sewage lagoon and interceptor sewer for the growing southwest portion of the city. In addition to serving this area, the lagoon will provide services to some residents in other settled parts of the city who are still using septic tanks.

It will eliminate the need for one temporary lagoon and three pumping stations.

Apart from local benefits, however, passage of the sewer bond issue Oct. 5 will go a long way toward solving much of Missouri's water pollution problems, since it is municipal sewage wastes that are responsible for most of these problems.

A resounding affirmative vote Oct. 5 would show that Missourians are serious about cleaning up their streams, rivers and lakes.

"When we get our jobs back, we've got a beautiful contract."

J. Edgar Demands Short-Hair Agents

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — J. Edgar Hoover, the 76-year-old FBI chief, has a hang up about hair. He's inclined to measure an employee's fidelity by the length of his locks.

Last June, for instance, the old curmudgeon saw a picture in the Washington Post of three FBI agents hustling an airline hijacker, Glen E. Riggs, into the U.S. magistrate's court in Alexandria, Va. One of the agents, John F. Mullen, had sideburns extending almost to the bottom of his ear.

This violated Hoover's taste in sideburns. In a huff, he censured Mullen for letting his sideburns grow too long and banished him to Indianapolis.

Now Hoover has ordered an FBI-wide inspection, division by division, for subversive sideburns and hippy hairdos. Anyone whose hair style doesn't suit the old man will lose 10 days pay.

Some FBI agents have complained privately that Hoover's tonsorial tastes make it difficult for them to infiltrate anti-government demonstrations. The demonstrators, invariably, wear their hair long and straggly.

Narcotics agents, who carefully cultivate the hippy look and lingo, have been far more successful at infiltration. They are contemptuous, indeed, of the FBI. As one narcotics agent put it to us, "An FBI man's idea of infiltrating a hippy group is taking off his tie."

A huge Texas company that does a big business with the oil companies has been hired by the Environmental Protection Agency to investigate the disastrous offshore oil spills and fires caused by the same companies.

The company is Texas Instruments, an $827-million-a-year concern whose board of directors until recently included no less an oily politico than John Connally, LBJ's old sidekick, who is Nixon's treasury secretary.

Officials at Texas Instruments are not at all embarrassed at having been hired to investigate one of their biggest customers. Indeed, in proper Texas fashion, they seem positively proud of it.

"We do business with all the major oil companies and all the minor oil companies," said Frank Lord, one of TI's public relations boosters.

Lord explained that aside from making equipment that could be used by oil drillers, Texas Instruments has one whole division devoted to performing seismic surveys of oil fields prior to drilling.

At the same time, he acknowledged, the company has signed a contract with EPA to do "surveys and investigations to determine the sources, causes, effects, movement or dispersions" of oil spills.

So far the company has investigated three major oil disasters: the Shell oil fire in the Gulf of Mexico last December; the Standard of California tanker collision near San Francisco in February and the Texaco spill near Anacortes in Puget Sound last April.

EPA officials stress that Texas Instruments has played no role in finding fault for the disasters, but was merely involved in determining the extent of the ecological harm.

This still creates an opportunity for a company, caught in a conflict of interest, to do its customer a favor. For a report minimizing the environmental harm from an oil spill would be of great public relations value to an oil company.

Nevertheless, the EPA insists that Texas Instruments has done a "professional job."

Catch 22 — Three Air Force enlistees, known as the Phut Cat Three, have been caught in a Catch 22 scenario. The trio—Sgt. James Crawford, AFC Charles Wells and AFC John Tomhave who hail, incidentally, from conservative, all-

American backgrounds—have been tossed in the brig at Long Binh, Vietnam, for refusing to carry weapons. They volunteered for Vietnam, became disillusioned over the slaughter of Vietnamese civilians and refused to bear arms any longer. They were promptly court-martialed and slapped into the brig for six months. Now they have been denied access to political literature while they sweat out their sentences awaiting a review of their case. Among the books that the Air Force apparently regards as subversive are Justice William O. Douglas' "Points of Rebellion," Andy Shapp's "Up Against the Brass," John Robinson's "Cultural Revolution in China," and Fred Halstead's "GIs Speak Out Against the War."

Pentagon Leak — Ssshhh! There's a leak in the Pentagon's war room. This isn't the sort of leak, however, that grand juries are trying to plug, but a leak on the Pentagon's air conditioning system. Every so often the system breaks down, spraying water on men and equipment. But the showers aren't altogether unwelcome. It gives our high security clearance boys a chance to roll up their trousers and wade through little puddles, something they haven't done since childhood.

Suppressing News — We have obtained documentary evidence that the Pentagon, despite official denials, sometimes suppresses news. Here's an order, still classified, that was issued in March, 1970, about the Cambodian incursion: "In view of the sensitivity of the situation, all members of this command are enjoined to refrain from making any comments, prognostications, or speculations concerning the situation, its impact on Republic of Vietnam or U.S. forces, or the possible final outcome. Not only are official on-the-record comments to be avoided, but any type of comment or background orientation on a not-for-attribution or off-the-record basis is similarly to be avoided." The order covered political as well as military information.

Rain Victory

Royals Win Short Game

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pitcher Paul Splittorf says he's afraid his Kansas City teammates are going to nickname him "Ducky."

"This is the fifth or sixth game I started in which it either rained before or during the game or there was a rain delay," he said. "The guys are getting on me about it. Before the game the guys said to me, 'not again'."

"If this keeps up, they'll be calling me 'Ducky' pretty soon," Splittorf said.

If he continues to throw the way he did against the Senators in the five-inning rain-shortened game Wednesday night his teammates may start calling him "Super Duck."

Splittorf gave up only one hit in beating the Senators 1-0. In a steady drizzle from the beginning of the game, Splittorf, 5-5, held the Senators hitless until Jeff Burroughs led off the fifth with a hard double to the left-centerfield fence. It was the first ball hit out of the infield off the 25-year-old left-hander.

The only other Washington runner was Frank Howard who reached first on an error in the first inning.

The Royals scored their only run in the first on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Cookie Rojas off loser Bill Gogolewski, 2-2.

Manager Bob Lemon said he thinks Splittorf, whose earned run average was 2.52 going into the game, will be one of the better pitchers in the future.

His control was weak in the spring," said Lemon. "But he went to Omaha and started throwing hard. And he's worked his way in the rotation. He's going to be one of the tough ones."

Cruzin' Along

St. Louis Cardinals' Jose Cruz sails in to score as Atlanta Braves' catcher Earl Williams waits for the throw. Cruz scored from second on the play on Joe Torre's single in the first inning.

Leftfielder Ralph Garr made the throw to Williams, but it was too late to nail the sliding Cruz. Atlanta won easily over the Cardinals, 9-3.

Cards Tumble, 9-3

Braves Roll On

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Felix Millan figured he was the hero of a 9-3 Atlanta Braves victory Wednesday night because he injured a finger in batting practice and didn't play.

Millan's absence from the lineup enabled bench warmer Gil Garrido to move in, and the 30-year-old Panamanian responded with four RBI clobbering the St. Louis Cardinals.

Ahead of the game Garrido, a utility infielder, was batting .165 with five RBI and no extra-base hits.

In scoring a hit with Manager Luman Harris, he doubled home Mike Lum to tie for the Braves at 3-3 in the seventh inning and capped a five-run Atlanta eighth with another two-base blow scoring three runs.

The production, Garrido conceded, was probably his biggest in a three-season major league career that followed nine in the minors.

"I've had a four-hit game before but not four RBI," he noted. "The thing is if you don't play regularly your timing's off. You've got to get lucky."

Garrido's late heroics occurred after the Cardinals' hard-luck Chris Zachary (3-8) had outdueled Braves right-hander Tom Kelley (7-3) through six innings.

Ralph Garr opened the seventh with a single, raced to third on a hit by Lum and scored on a two-out single by Zoilo Versalles.

Garrido's subsequent double over left fielder Lou Brock's head might also have scored Versalles for a 4-3 Braves lead except that the ball bounced over the fence and a ground rule halted Versalles at third.

In the decisive eighth, Hank Aaron's hit through third base put Atlanta in front, after which Versalles walked with the bases full and Garrido again connected.

"He's always been a valuable player," Harris said in reference to the game's seldom-used star.

"I think the world of him, but due to many things that have happened he just hasn't been playing a lot."

Things happening for the Braves include a streak of 25 victories in their last 38 games moving them seven games back of San Francisco in the National League West.

"I think everybody on the ball club's starting to think we've got a chance," said Harris, whose club stood 37-45 on June 29.

At Fair Races

Scoring System Changed

A new, more efficient electronic device has been added to the scoring system for the auto races at the 1971 Missouri State Fair. The method, used on the new model circuit by the International Motor Contest Association, uses a clock that is similar to a scoreboard clock at a football stadium, but adds seconds instead of subtracting them.

National Speedways, Inc. President Al Sweeney, describes the new system as "foolproof." "It is the same scoring principle which is used for the Indianapolis 500, the Daytona 500, and the 'Little 500' at Anderson, Ind.," Sweeney said. "The major difference is that we use one clock, and at Indy there is a clock for each car."

Sweeney explained the operation: "Scorers for each car are given a form, and each time their driver completes a lap, the scorer will write down the time on the clock as the car passes a specific point on the track."

"The scorer is also instructed to indicate pit stops and spin-outs for his driver. This way we can determine how much of a lead a car will have over others."

The old set-up consisted of an official scorer, a National Speedways employee, and persons selected from the local area who counted laps for each driver. "They (the individual scorers) would mark an 'X' on their card each time their driver passed," Sweeney noted.

"However, they could easily miss the car, and they weren't as attentive as a driver's hand-picked scorer."

Even though each car supplies its own scorer, turning in false times is nearly impossible. "If a scorer started adding seconds onto the scoreboard time each lap, he would become very confused," Sweeney explained. "We have had no problems with cheating and we explain the importance of accuracy to the scorers. Under the old system, we could usually expect some complaints, and we'd have to go through the tedious process of recounting all the laps." This happened here last year in the disputed Ron Hutcherson victory that eventually was awarded to Fred Horn.

The new equipment cost approximately $1,000, which led the National Speedways president to remark, "That's the best $1,000 we have ever spent."

Due to the importance of the 100-mile new model race, Bob Byrne, chief scorer for the "Little 500," has been assigned by the IMCA to that same position here at the Fairgrounds oval. Byrne brings with him the knowledge gained in 23 years of serving the "Little 500," plus the timing device that has been used at Sun Valley Speedway for the last 10 years.

Another innovation in long-distance stock car races will be in effect at the Missouri State Fair this year. The mandatory 30-second pit stop under the green flag, that has been in use during recent years, will be eliminated for the 100-mile marathon, Aug. 28. This should result in a faster race and make it less confusing for the fans to follow the lead cars.

With the new scoring and pit stop set-up, a fast, efficient pit crew can be more essential than ever before.

Miami's annual International Boat Show, which drew 279,000 visitors last winter, will be held next Feb. 18-23 in Miami Beach Convention Hall.

Speaks at Press Luncheon

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Missouri's hopes for an upper division finish in Big Eight Conference football will ride with the squad's defense, Tiger coach Al Onofrio says.

Onofrio, in St. Louis for a press luncheon, Wednesday labeled the squad's offense inexperienced and its quarterbacking problems unresolved.

"If Mike Farmer and Chuck Roper can't play in the first scrimmage," the 49-year-old Onofrio said, "they can't be considered first or second team."

Farmer and Roper, both seniors, alternated in quarterbacking Missouri to a 5-6 record in 1970.

Both, however, underwent surgery during spring practice and the fitness of the two will not be determined until after the squad reports for practice next Tuesday in Columbia.

Onofrio, named to the Mizzou head coaching post following departure of Dan Devine in January, said a sophomore, Ed Johndrow, and a junior, John Venturi, are top quarterbacking prospects if Roper and Farmer are not ready.

"We can't take a chance holding somebody out of scrimmage and then having that person getting hurt and bringing in a player not experienced with the first team," he explained.

Even if Roper and Farmer are healthy, however, major rebuilding will occur in a Tiger offense stripped of eight other regulars.

Bastable, who missed spring practice while playing baseball, assumed tailbacking duties in 1970 following injury to Joe Moore, now graduated. Mauser, a senior, spelled James Harrison on occasion at fullback.

Onofrio said junior letterman Mike Fink, whom he labeled one of the squad's fastest performers, will shift from defense to slotback.

Tackle Rocky Wallace, linebackers Nip Weisenfels and Adam Vital and end Mike Bennett are gone, but defense still ranks as Mizzou's strength, Onofrio said.

"I don't think we've had any better linebackers as a pair than Sam Britts and Mike McKee," defensive backfield coach Clay Cooper said.

Others returning as regular to the defense are end John Brown and defensive backs Lorenzo Brinkley and Henry Stuckey.

"Anything I say is not going to be negative," Onofrio said in respect to an 11-game Missouri season opening Sept. 11 in Columbia against Stanford. "I know we're going to have a good football team, but I don't know how many games we're going to win."

Disputes Continue

Grid Stars Stay On the Sidelines

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Frank Tarkenton says he wants "to be reasonable." Duane Thomas said he wants "to be treated like a man." But in the meantime, both remain on the sidelines as pro football's preseason training continues.

Tarkenton, the New York Giants' exhibition opener against Houston Monday night in a contract dispute with owner Wellington T. Mara, made gestures towards a reconciliation Wednesday, but Mara responded with what appears to be a hard line.

"I'd be very happy to receive a call saying they want to talk," Tarkenton said. "I'm open, I want to be reasonable."

Mara:

"I've said all I have to say on the matter," the Giants' owner declared. "I will not negotiate with a man who's not in a camp." Since Tarkenton has already said he will not return to the Giants without a new contract, that situation is at something of an impasse.

Thomas, the star running back who refused to report to the Cowboys, was traded to New England, left the Patriots because he felt he was not wanted there, and finally saw the trade nullified, now says he will play for any National Football League club which will treat him "like a man."

One possible home for Thomas is Washington, where George Allen expressed an interest in the talented runner from West Texas State. "If you guys can arrange a trade," Allen told reporters, "we will go after Thomas."

Meanwhile, the Giants had another walkout on their hands. Punter Bill Johnson disappointed with his performance in the team's 35-6 exhibition loss to Houston Monday night, left camp Wednesday.

Johnson averaged 39.5 yards per kick as the Giants' regular punter last season, but punted four times for a 31-yard average against the Oilers.

Tackle Francis Peay, who stormed out of the Green Bay Packers' training camp Monday after being angered at criticism by an assistant coach, said he will be back in camp Friday.

Jerry LeVias, the mini-receiver who failed to come to terms with San Diego after being dealt by Houston to the Chargers two weeks ago, reported and signed with the NFL club.

In a trade of fourth-round draft choices, Houston sent offensive tackle Larron Jackson to Denver for cornerback Cleophus Johnson. Denver will also get an undisclosed future draft choice.

The Minnesota Vikings obtained two guards in a pair of deals. They got Doug Sutherland from New Orleans in exchange for running back Bill Harris, then obtained Mike LaHood from St. Louis for line-backer Jim Hargrove.

The Philadelphia Eagles cut quarterback Jimmy Corcoran, a former Atlantic Coast Football League star, and the Washington Redskins dropped veteran defensive back Mike Gaechter, a former Dallas Cowboy. The Skins signed defensive tackle Dick Arndt, recently waived by Pittsburgh.

To Issue Football Equipment Friday

Head Smith-Cotton High School football coach Greg Cook has announced that football equipment will be issued Friday morning at Jennie Jaynes Stadium.

The physical examination period, scheduled for Monday evening, has been rescheduled for Friday at 6 p.m.

Midget Race Cars On Saturday Card

HOLTS SUMMIT, Mo. — A five-card racing program will be presented Saturday night at Capital Speedway here. In addition to the regular super-sprint, B-modified, late model stock and hobby stock classes, competition director Ralph Kiesling has announced that midgets racers will be on this week's card.

Kiesling pointed out that entries have been received from midget drivers in Kansas City and St. Louis, as well as other areas of the Midwest.

Early entries have been received by Joe Walter, Ronnie Taylor, Bert Wilson, Steve Weuant, Jack Dillard and the current Midwestern midget point leader, Mike Hill of Kansas City.

The special five-card program will begin at 8 p.m.

No-Repeat Rule Is Repealed At Big 10 Session

CHICAGO (AP) — Big Ten faculty representatives have repealed the "no-repeat" rule which has prohibited conference teams from appearing in the Rose Bowl game two years in succession.

The repeal vote came Wednesday at the representatives' summer meetings in Boyne Highlands, Mich.

The rule has barred five teams since 1947, who otherwise qualified, from appearing in the game two years in a row.

The schools have 60 days after classes convene in the fall to challenge the vote.

If it is upheld, the 1972 Big Ten representative in the bowl game will be able to appear in the January 1973 game, if the team is otherwise eligible.

In its original agreement with the old Pacific Coast Conference, the Big Ten promised it would send "a representative team" to the game each year.

Since the 1946 agreement, though, the conference winner or co-winner was barred from the game by the no-repeat rule five times.

It also was reported that pressure is being brought on the representatives to abolish a long-standing rule which prohibits Big Ten teams from accepting bids to other bowl games.

Newsprint Recycling Has Begun

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of people are reading today's news on yesterday's newspaper because of environmental concern that has led to increasing use of recycled newsprint.

The American Paper Institute estimated that of all the newspapers printed in 1969, 23 per cent were recycled; that is, collected and reprocessed into new paper.

Industry, conservation groups, legislators and others have combined to aid in the recycling drive.

In Madison, Wis., for example, the institute and city officials joined to ask residents to separate newspapers from other refuse. As a result about 40 per cent of the collectable newspapers are being recycled, according to the institute.

Irvington, N.J., legislators passed a law requiring that householders put their newspapers out separately once a month. Charities pick up the paper and sell it to a recycling company.

San Diego, Calif., residents are encouraged to put their newspapers into one of 200 boxes set out by the Kiwanis Club. The city picks up the papers and sells them. The Kiwanis Club gets $5 for every full box and the city salvage operation gets $8.

The institute estimates that groups which collect and sort old paper make about $25 million annually. In addition, taxpayers save $25 in the cost of refuse disposal for every ton of paper that is collected, according to institute figures.

The most important product made from recycled waste paper of all kinds is combination paperboard. The API estimated 70 per cent of recycled paper is used in this form. Next comes newsprint and then a variety of other projects including cartons, posters and book covers.

How much recycled newsprint can be used?

The Garden State Paper Co., the major producer of recycled newsprint, estimated a maximum of 40 per cent.

Richard B. Scudder, chairman of Garden State, said, however, such penetration is impractical from a sales standpoint.

Scudder said close to 200 papers in 27 states use recycled newsprint, including the Chicago Sun-Times, the New York

Post, the Los Angeles Times and the Washington Post.

How does recycled newsprint compare with regular newsprint?

Irwin Jaffe, director of the testing laboratory of the American Newspaper Publishers Association Research Institute, said that on the basis of initial tests "basically you could say it's the same quality."

Jaffe said the recycled paper is "pretty much the same color" as regular newsprint. He said there were only very slight differences in other qualities like opacity, strength and texture.

Jaffe added, however, it was still impossible to determine how newsprint recycled more than once would stand up. "We have no knowledge of how many times it can be recycled," he said.

A spokesman for the Richmond Newspapers, publisher of the morning Times Dispatch and evening News Leader, said these papers had been using recycled newsprint since last fall.

"We are quite pleased," he said. "The strength is excellent. The opacity is good. The break record is good. It's equivalent to virtually any Canadian paper."

The spokesman said the combined press run of the morning and afternoon papers was 270,000, printed by letterpress.

He said recycled newsprint costs about $7 a ton less than new paper, which now costs $168 a ton delivered in New York and $163 a ton west of the Rocky Mountains.

Sign of the Future?

New York Mayor John Lindsay flashes the peace sign as he chats with a man at a meeting of Bronx Democratic leaders Wednesday, shortly after announcing he had changed from the Republican to the Democratic party. (UPI)
